Antiwar Protests Held Across Nation During Easter Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tens of thousands of persons joined Easter weekend protests against the Vietnam war.

More than 50,000 gathered in New York's Central Park Saturday in an orderly protest that set the tone for parades and rallies in other cities. The protests were organized by the National Action Coalition, made up of 12 antiwar groups.

The only violent incident came Sunday in San Francisco, where a peaceful parade of 10,000 to the Presidio army installation ended in a clash that injured 13 military policemen.

Seven MPs were treated for eye injuries after being sprayed with an unidentified liquid. Three others suffered chemical skin burns and three more were cut by thrown bottles. Police held three demonstrators.

The parade, which included some out-of-uniformed servicemen, moved from the Civic Center to the Presidio without incident.

The clash began when several demonstrators tried to push onto the base. MPs who resisted then were bombarded with stones and bottles.

Several West Coast military bases scheduled extra duty over the weekend during the hours of the demonstrations.

More than 10,000 persons marched through Chicago Saturday in a peaceful protest. Strong winds blew away their signs and there was scattered heckling.

About 3,500 people gathered in Los Angeles Sunday for an anti-war rally. A brief scuffle between two antiwar groups ended with 12 fist-fighters falling into the lake at Lafayette Park. Police booked five persons or charges of suspicion of disturbing the peace.

New York Rally

The massive New York rally followed a parade up Sixth Avenue by about 40,000 persons. Six persons were arrested in two incidents, and police and bystanders were splattered with yellow paint hurled from a skyscraper, apparently at paraders.

About 150 off-duty servicemen led the parade, organizers said. They wore white hats labeled "GI's for Peace." Some of them burned what appeared to be military identification papers during the park rally.

Many marchers, in New York and elsewhere, wore black armbands that said, "33,000." The figure indicated the toll of GI's killed in Vietnam, which passed the Korean War total last week.

In Gainesville, Fla., about 200 persons marched to the federal building and built a small brick and mortar "humble memorial" there. It contained 33 bricks, one for each Alachua County man killed in Vietnam.

In West Palm Beach, Fla., about 50 persons marched

'Good Strong Beat' First Mechanical Heart Replaced by Real One

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Has-kell Karp received the heart of a Massachusetts woman today after having been kept alive 65 hours by the world's first completely mechanical heart.

The donor of the 19th heart transplant to be performed by the team headed by Dr. Denton A. Cooley was Mrs. Barbara Ewan, 40, of Lawrence, Mass., who had been flown to Houston in the early morning hours after suffering irreversible brain damage.

The flight was arranged after Mrs. Ewan's family responded to a tearful plea by Mrs. Shirley Karp that "someone, somewhere" would answer her husband's need for a human heart.

Today's transplant was completed in two hours.

Single Shock

Karp's new heart began beating after only one electrical shock.

"This indicates a good, strong heart function and Mr. Karp is in satisfactory condition at the moment," a St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital spokesman said.

Cooley had implanted the eight ounce plastic and fabric heart in Karp's chest Friday afternoon in "an act of desperation" after efforts to repair a donor severely damaged heart chamber had failed.

The experimental device was designed to keep a patient alive only until a donor heart could be obtained and Cooley had indicated he hoped a transplant could be arranged as quickly as possible.

Daughter's Request

Mrs. Ewan was transferred to Houston at the request of one of her three daughters, Carol Burns of Lawrence, who accompanied her mother to Houston.

R. Ashlon Smith, director of the Lawrence hospital, said in a statement that "Mrs. Ewan was alive when transferred, and her heart was functioning well according to reports from the team of physicians who attended her at Lawrence General Hospital."

"Although physicians held virtually no hope for her survival, doctors in Lawrence and Dr. Denton Cooley, in charge of proceedings at the medical center, vowed to do everything medically possible to save Mrs. Ewan."

Mrs. Burns asked that her mother be transferred in response to Mrs. Karp's plea for a donor.

Rogers Confirms Plan to End War

Nixon Spokesman Won't Divulge Details of What Could be 'Fair' Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers of troops' from Vietnam this declared today that "we certainly hope there will be some

Nixon Takes Time Out to Toss First Ball

President Opens Baseball Season, Hunts Easter Eggs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon took time out today from the weighty problems of his office for a little fun and games—rolling Easter eggs and watching some baseball.

The President, just back from a Florida weekend, set aside time in the morning to join in the traditional Easter egg roll on the White House lawn. Following this was a trip to the Robert F. Kennedy Stadium to throw on the first ball marking the opening of the 1969 major league baseball season.

In attending the game between the Washington Senators and the New York Yankees, Nixon was following a tradition started in the early part of the century by President William Taft.

Domestic Legislation

The day wasn't devoted entirely to such light-hearted affairs. Nixon had called a morning meeting of his Urban Affairs Council to push ahead with plans for his own program of domestic legislation.

While spending five days at his waterfront home at Key Biscayne, Fla., Nixon bore down on paperwork in the domestic area and held one formal conference and review of home front policies.

Soviet Missiles

On other subjects, Rogers said.

He has difficulty in understanding why the Soviet Union is deploying a massive nuclear missile—the SS9—which carries a 25-megaton warhead. This is "one of the first questions we intend to take up with them when we have the U.S.-Soviet talks on strategic arms limitation," he said.

The United States is actively preparing for the strategic arms limitation talks—the aim of which would be to limit nuclear weapons—and "we expect they will begin in late spring or early summer."

Cut off Aid

If no solution is forthcoming, Nixon could be forced to cut off American aid to Peru and eliminate the annual quota permitting sugar imports from that country.

The rest of the week's presidential calendar has an international flavor.

Tuesday and Wednesday he will be host to King Hussein of Jordan, who is paying an official visit to the United States.

The explosive Arab-Israeli situation will, no doubt, be a major topic of talks between the two.

Thursday the President will speak at a ministerial meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The alliance is celebrating the 20th anniversary of its founding.

Very Difficult

The United States has expressed its concern to the Soviet Union about its actions in Czechoslovakia, Rogers said, that when the Soviets have 60,000 to 70,000 troops, and tanks, in Czechoslovakia it makes East-West relations very difficult and in fact "the whole Brezhnev doctrine is very disconcerting."

His reference was to Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist Party chief, who has argued Russia has a right to intervene to suppress change in any Communist country.

Negotiations' Tactics

"Conditions may have been sufficiently serious to have induced North Vietnam to use the tactics of 'negotiation' to gain a period of relief in order to rectify its more pressing problems, and to reinvigorate support of the war in South Vietnam."

Although calling the bombing "the most precise in history," Sharp implied the raids could have been even more effective were it not for restrictions imposed by Washington for non-military reasons.

President Prodded Congress Waits for Nixon's Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., prodded the Nixon administration today to speed up its recommendations to Congress.

Emphasizing that he meant no criticism of Nixon, McCormack said in a statement that Congress and the new President "can best act by the executive expediting messages and reports as quickly as possible."

Without mentioning criticism of Congress for having done little during its first three months in session, McCormack said that to date the legislative branch "has made fine progress."

"As a practical matter," he said, "it is exceedingly difficult for the leadership in Congress to formulate a legislative program and timetable . . . until it has before it those recommendations which the President has submitted to the Congress."

McCormack's prod came on the heels of a weekend statement by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills that his House Ways and Means Committee will start writing tax reform legislation before the end of the month even if Nixon hasn't submitted his own proposals.

Mills, D-Ark., is chairman of the committee, which handles all tax legislation.

Nixon reportedly has told leaders of both the House and Senate that he hopes to present his budget recommendations and some other major legislative proposals soon after Congress returns from its current Easter vacation a week from today.

Closer Coordination

McCormack said he made his observations "in the spirit of having close coordination between the Congress and President Nixon."

During the first three months of the new Congress that convened in 1965, he said, President Johnson sent a total of 5 messages to Capitol Hill before the

Returned to Bush

Nigerian army sources said at least 1,500 townspeople have returned from the bush to the village of Aké Eze, 20 miles north of Ozu Okoli. The Biafrans claimed they recaptured Ozu Okoli Saturday after the federalists overran it March 30 in their offensive from the north.

There has been no indication the 1st Division offensive will be joined by two other Nigerian divisions encircling Biafra. Both have problems of their own.

Two Negro Churches Mark 'Black Easter'

BIFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Easter finery was missing from two Negro churches here Sunday as the pastors and worshippers wore work clothes and blue jeans to celebrate a "black Easter."

Participants said the services at the New Zion Missionary Baptist Church and the Humboldt Parkway Baptist Church were to commemorate the death a year ago of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Reports by Commanders

Restraints Prevented Victory in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two former U.S. commanders in the Vietnam war say American escalation of the fighting was essential in preventing the fall of South Vietnam, but White House restraints ruled out a traditional military victory.

In their 347-page "Report on the War in Vietnam," published today by the Pentagon, Gen. William C. Westmoreland and Adm. J. S. G. Sharp said their strategy in building up the American effort from 1964 until last year was generally successful and ended any chance of an enemy victory.

Westmoreland who ran the U.S. war effort in Vietnam until last June said without the burden of American troops in 1965 he doubts the South Vietnamese could have held out for more than six months.

But, he wrote, restrictions by the White House on military operations against Viet Cong and North Vietnamese sanctuaries in neighboring Laos, Cambodia and North Vietnam "made it impossible to destroy the enemy's forces in a traditional or classic sense."

Sharp, who as U.S. commander in the Pacific planned the air war against North Vietnam until his retirement last August, for his part said the "profound effect" of American bombing of the North probably induced Hanoi to seek relief by agreeing to the negotiations now underway in Paris.

"The cumulative effects of air operations and the demands of the war in South Vietnam resulted in unprecedented stresses and strains on the North Vietnamese economy, production and distribution systems, the life of the people and the political control apparatus," Sharp wrote.

"Negotiations' Tactics

"Conditions may have been sufficiently serious to have induced North Vietnam to use the tactics of 'negotiation' to gain a period of relief in order to rectify its more pressing problems, and to reinvigorate support of the war in South Vietnam."

Although calling the bombing "the most precise in history," Sharp implied the raids could have been even more effective were it not for restrictions imposed by Washington for non-military reasons.

Foster Parents Often Reluctant to Provide Care for Black Youths

By GLORIA B. ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer
MADISON (AP) — Cathy, a blonde, blue-eyed 2-year-old, needed a place to live while her mother recovered from a serious illness. She was placed without difficulty in a foster home.

Finding a home for John, a 17-year-old Negro, was more difficult. Twice he ran away from a foster family before being placed with a family he accepted.

Cathy and John are among about 6,000 children in Wisconsin who live with foster families. Another 900 live in state institutions.

"What we need are homes for black adolescents with problems," said John Vick, supervisor of the state's foster child program for counties.

Constant Problem
"It's easy to place the white Anglo-Saxon pre-schooler, especially a girl, but we're constantly banging our heads against the wall in efforts to place black adolescents," he said.

Children who have gotten into minor trouble but do not need to be sent to a correctional institution are even harder to place, he noted.

One attempt to deal with the problem of adolescents has been the establishment of about 15 "group homes," semi-institutional homes run by churches or organizations and staffed by professionals. The homes have limited residents to six or eight children.

"The homes we have are a doing a fine job," Vick said. "But of course they cannot accommodate all the youths who need homes."

Emotional Problems
He relates the increasing number of juveniles with emotional problems to the "flight to the cities."

"When more people lived on farms," he said, "we didn't have these problems. They've come with urbanization."

The state pays foster families a support fee for each child which averages about $88.12 a month. The monthly cost of institutional care is much higher, about $481 per month, because the children generally require special psychological or physical care.

"We hopefully think of the child as being able to go back home someday to real parents," Vick said. "But this is impractical. There is no home to go back to for more than half of them."

Parents Unknown
A study by the department of health and social services in 1967 showed in almost one-tenth of the cases, neither parent was known and in one-third of the cases, one parent could not be located.

The same study found three-fourths of the children were placed in foster homes not because of their own behavior or mental condition but because of their parents' desertion, abuse, neglect or inability to provide care for the placement of foster children.

who are known by social workers as "orphans of the living," would permit adoption of children whose parents are mentally ill.

Many Homes
When a family gives up a foster child, he may be placed in another foster home if he cannot be returned to his own. Some children have had as many as half a dozen "homes" in the first 18 years of their lives.

Many potential foster children, Vick said, are now living in "their own, miserable, inadequate, rotten homes."

The lack of available foster homes, he said, means many children must stay where they are even though another environment would be better for them.

While some parents voluntarily seek foster homes for their children, others may be taken by court order upon the recommendation of school officials, ministers or other concerned individuals, leaving the parents angry and distraught.

Parents Organized
Foster parents, who sign an agreement to give up the child whenever the placement agency says, often feel children are taken away too abruptly or without good reason.

Last fall several foster parents in Wisconsin organized the United Foster Parents Association primarily to improve relations between social workers, administrators and foster parents.

"Social workers tend to look down on foster parents," complained Mrs. Richard Olson of Madison, secretary of the organization. "They have too much power. There's no law requiring them to give us notice before removing foster children from our homes."

Vick described the organization of the foster parents as "a marvelous thing."

"In our zeal to place kids, I'm afraid we've run roughshod over foster parents," he said.

Occasionally, however, a couple such as Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Boles of Waunakee become so attached to a child they are willing to fight lengthy court battles for custody.

After two years, and opposition from the State Department of Health and Social Services as well as another foster family, the Boles were allowed to adopt 9-year-old Connie who grew up in their home.

In some cases, adoption is blocked because the natural parents refuse to give up their child.

Assemblywoman Carolyn Blanchard, R-Edgerton, has submitted a bill to grant judges more discretion in terminating parental rights.

The bill, which was passed in the Assembly and recommended for passage by the Senate Judiciary Committee, would let a judge declare parents delinquent for failing to correct situations

Economy Cycle Regulation Still Is Not Perfect

Government Itself Helped Destroy Own Guidelines

BY JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—While much has been learned in the past decade about regulating the economic cycle, there have been and still remain some serious errors and inconsistencies.

In the early 1960s, for example, voluntary limits were applied to wage and price increases. This was the guidepost policy, and it worked well for a while. Inflation was almost negligible.

It was the government itself that helped destroy this policy. In some instances it approved increases that exceeded production. And heavy government spending caused relentless inflationary pressure to develop.

In 1966 a credit crunch threatened to plunge the economy into an abyss. It was a manufactured crunch, the result of an administration urging the economy to greater activity while the Federal Reserve was cutting back.

Build Demand
The consequence of these opposite policies was to build economic demand but to deny the economy the money to meet those demands.

This wasn't the only conflict in recent years between the Fed, which controls the availability and to an extent the price of credit, and the administration, which controls fiscal activities such as spending and taxing.

As recently as last year monetary and fiscal policy again were badly out of step with each other. While the administration was taxing money out of the economy, the Fed was pouring it back in.

The well known result of this inconsistency is all about us today. That is, rather than having been cooled, the economy today is growing even hotter and may continue to do so for several months more.

An even greater consequence of this fiscal-monetary clash may lie ahead. That is, in a belated attempt to correct for past errors, a new error could be committed.

The miscalculation would occur if the Fed, feeling that its earlier permissive policy had worsened inflation, were to shut off credit so sharply that a recession occurred.

Another current policy that critics say represents an inconsistency is the 7 per cent investment tax credit. This is meant to be a spur to spending. It's aim is to encourage economic activity.

The stated aim of the Nixon administration, however, is just the opposite—to discourage spending, to slow the economy. In fact, it seeks to extend the 10 per cent surtax on incomes so as to take money out of the economy.

9 Per Cent Raise
The administration's own wage policy also is being criticized by some as inflationary. Under this policy, government workers are to receive a $2.8 billion, or 9 per cent increase later this year.

In an editorial in its current issue, Business Week magazine comments:

"The impact of this huge pay increase will be doubly inflationary—both by cutting the budget surplus or, more likely, aggravating the deficit, and by providing a higher target for unions to shoot at."

It concludes that "it would be sensible either to postpone the increase or to grant it in two stages, with part of the gain to come next year."

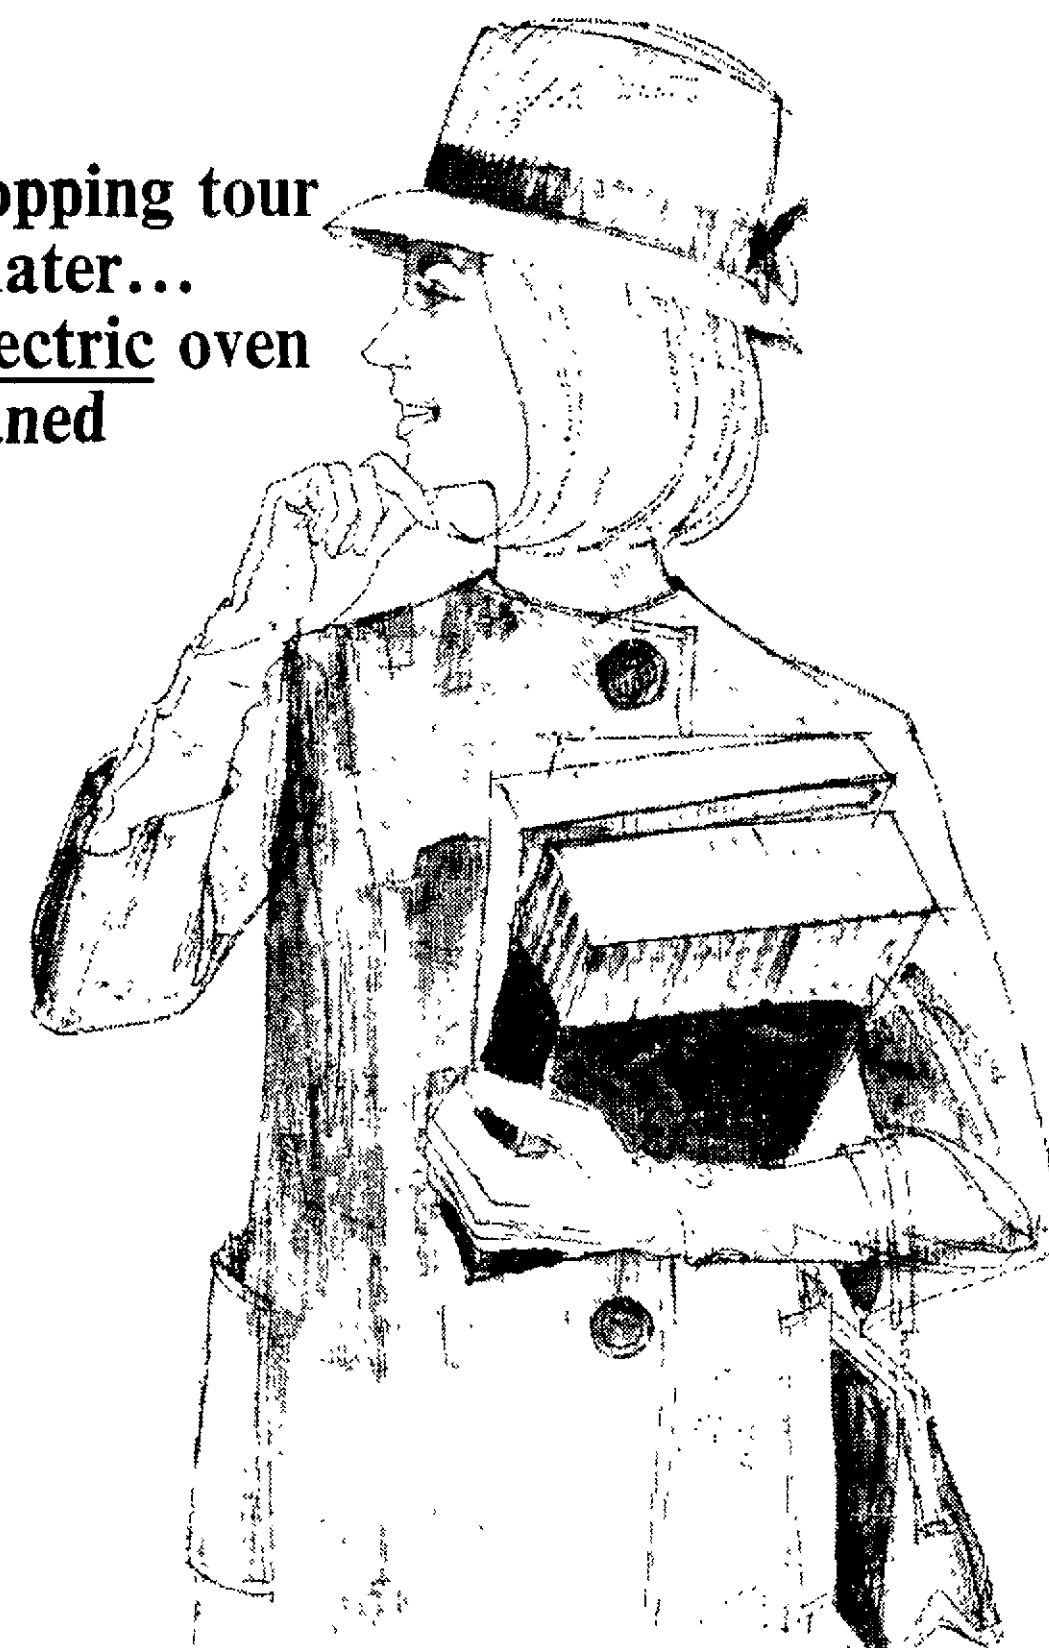

It is quite easy to conclude from all this that there is still a great deal to be learned about flattening out the ups and downs of the economic cycle.

Equally significant is the observation that no matter how much is known about economics, it isn't always easy to put it into practice.

Urge Investigation Of Increased Prices For Gas and Crude Oil
WASHINGTON (AP)—Wisconsin Senators William Proxmire and Gaylord Nelson are among 11 members of the upper chamber who have urged a Justice Department investigation of recent gasoline and crude oil prices.

In a letter to Atty Gen John Mitchell, the senators said Texaco raised its wholesale price for gasoline six-tenths of a cent a gallon Feb 24. Within seven days, 13 other major oil companies raised their prices by either six-tenths or seven-tenths of a cent per gallon.

"Because of the stringent laws against price fixing, we think that the fact that all these oil companies raised their prices by almost the same prices at the same times merits close consideration," the senators told Mitchell.

Mayor Lindsay Appears Certain of Nomination

He's Far Ahead of Closest Contender
For Republican Nod in June 17 Primary

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — A secret citywide poll reveals that Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York has a surprisingly comfortable lead for renomination — thanks mainly to the fact that his opposition in the June 17 Republican primary is divided.

The poll, conducted for Republican politicians by a leading surveying organization, shows these results: Lindsay, 39 per cent; Sen. John Marchi of Staten Island, running with the Conservatives and the Conservative support of the Bronx and Staten Island regular Republican orga-elections poorly thought of by politicians, 15 per cent; undecided, 26 per cent.

What is startling here is that Marchi, an articulate modern version of the ethnic politician, runs scarcely better than the eccentric Battista. Indeed, the poll's results in Queens (the borough traditionally considered the key to victory or defeat in New York City) make even worse reading for Marchi. Lindsay, 42 per cent; Battista, 18 per cent; Marchi, 16 per cent; undecided, 24 per cent.

Indeed, Marchi runs third behind Battista in the Bronx (where he has regular backing and was expected to win) and Brooklyn, as well as Queens, runs second in Manhattan, and leads only in his small home borough of Staten Island.

The fact that the Marchi-Battista total, an anti-Lindsay protest vote, comes quite close to the Mayor's is scant comfort to Marchi. The disclosure that he is not much stronger than Battista may torpedo backstage efforts by conservative leaders to talk Battista out of the race.

Rather, during the next three months, Marchi's men will have to convince anti-Lindsay Republicans that Battista is nothing but a loudmouthed buffoon who merely divides the opposition.

In Marchi's favor is the large group of undecided Republicans in the first Republican mayoral primary since 1942. In the Bronx, the undecideds total a stupendous 40 per cent.

Kissinger's Growing Power
A plan to abolish the State Department's once - prestigious policy planning council is now under study at top levels of the Nixon administration. The reason: Dr. Henry Kissinger's high-flying White House operation is taking over major policy planning functions.

Kissinger's bright young men are flooding the state department's fourth and fifth floors with telephone calls for information on current foreign crises, extracting information from desk officers that normally goes upstairs to State's regional bureau chiefs.

Thus, in addition to Kissinger's role as a major policy voice inside the White House, his highly-tuned staff is also moving into the operational field.

Under Kissinger's predecessor, Latin diplomats base private predictions that President Nixon will not cut off aid to Peru April 9 — the deadline under the Hickenlooper amendment — on one interesting fact: Mr. Nixon's decision, still secret, to make a major hemisphere speech in Washington on Pan-American Day, April 14.

The President's audience will consist of the Latin American ambassadors to the U.S. plus delegates to the Organization of American States (OAS).

If he intended to cut off aid and the sugar quota, the President would not have accepted the invitation and risked an embarrassingly hostile reception.

Accordingly, Mr. Nixon seems certain to rule that "appropriate steps" have now been taken leading to compensation for the International Petroleum Co., the Standard Oil (N.J.) subsidiary seized by Peru last October. That would postpone any aid cutoff though the long-range prospect for settlement remains poor.

Your Money's Worth Household Employees— Check Social Security

BY SYLVIA PORTER
Last November, Mrs. Mary B., a 34-year-old household worker, was killed in an automobile accident. When a niece inquired about Social Security survivors' benefits for Mrs. B.'s four small children, she found that only one of her aunt's three former employers had been reporting Mrs. B.'s earnings. Thus, Mrs. B.'s children would receive only the minimum $82.50 per month family Social Security benefit — a full $71.90 less than the $154.40 monthly benefit to which the children actually were entitled. But, the Social Security office finally tracked down Mrs. B.'s other two employers, forcing each to pay nearly $500 in back taxes, interest and penalties.

This little horror story not only shouts a warning to you, an employer of a household worker, to report and pay Social Security taxes on your employee's wages. It also flashes a warning to the nation's 1,450,000 household employees to protect their benefits by making sure the tax is paid on their wages.

Acting President of Rice University Gets His High School Degree

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — City school trustees decided the acting president of Rice University, who skipped high school, nevertheless should have a diploma.

School board members voted unanimously Monday to award Dr. Frank E. Vandiver, 43, an honorary high school diploma.

"That's lovely—I've always wanted one," said Vandiver, who holds a master's degree from the University of Texas and a doctorate from Tulane University.

The son of a University of Texas mathematics professor, Vandiver was tutored in high school subjects.

Any preference as to the high school?

"Robert E. Lee," Vandiver said without hesitation. He is the author of several books on the Civil War.

IRS Can Tell You
— If you are not now paying taxes you owe, write the IRS explaining why you have failed to pay and also estimating the total amount of wages you have failed to report. The IRS will then inform you what amount of back taxes and interest you may owe. Don't delay this.

— Household employees include: cooks, cleaning women, babysitters, handymen (but not carpenters, plumbers or those in a "trade or business") butlers, gardeners, chauffeurs. Not included are children under age 21 who are paid to perform household duties.

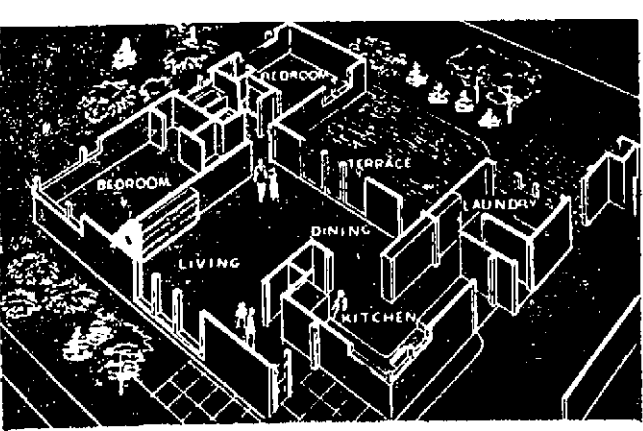

— "Wages" include any amounts you may give your employee for bus fare, meals or clothes in addition to regular cash wages you pay. Wages, however, do not include the value of food or lodging in your home, clothing, car tokens or other non-cash benefits.

You may not realize how little Social Security taxes you would have to pay to comply with the law — even if you pay the entire tax each quarter yourself. This chart dramatizes this:

| Wage paid | Comb'd S.S. tax |
|-----------|-----------------|
| $50 | $4.80 |
| $100 | $9.60 |
| $300 | $28.80 |

'Blackboard Jungle' Is Gone

By DENNIS J. SORESEN
MILWAUKEE (AP)—When a genuine "blackboard jungle" cuts its "discipline problem" by 70 per cent in one semester some people might call it magic.

That is the record at virtually all-Negro North Division High School, but Milwaukee School Superintendent Richard P. Gousha says, "There is no magic."

North Division once was wracked by as much tension and student violence as any high school in the country. The school has 1,400 students, 99 per cent of whom are black.

Fires, False Alarms
At the height of the problems, during last year's second semester, then vice-principal Victor Anderson said fires and false alarms were "almost a daily occurrence." One day, five fires were set in one hour.

Anderson, 42, a white ex-Marine who left the school on doctors' orders after being attacked by students and intruders 40 times in 12 months, called the school a "blackboard jungle with an explosive emphasis on black power."

In one week, Anderson said, students set three fires, turned two pounds of sugar into a Negro teacher's automobile gas tank, beat a different Negro teacher to his knees, attacked another teacher and short-circuited the electrical system twice. In the same week, one student was caught carrying a pistol, one pulled a knife on Anderson and another threatened to kill then-principal Andre Ptak with a broken bottle.

Now the problems have been reduced by "at least 70 per cent," according to Lloyd R. Howell, present principal of North Division, who would like to give much of the credit to a bold new experiment in learning at the school—or rather away from it.

Black Administration
There are other factors, as well. Howell is a Negro. So is the vice principal, completing the black replacement of the previous white administration. And the quiet period has extended through much of the winter, low point of the year for outbreaks.

There still are occasional problems, such as a fire that caused an estimated $2,000 damage a few weeks ago and caused students and teachers to abandon the school for 45 minutes. A battalion fire chief said vandalism was involved. Three fires had been set among scenery and props for school production of "Porgy and Bess."

The fire was an incident, however, rather than what had threatened to become a rule of thumb last year prior to the black-oriented experiment.

But the "bold new experiment" nevertheless is one that administrators, teachers and students hope may shape the future of aging metropolitan school systems everywhere.

Biggest Step
The biggest step in the six-month-old experiment was taken late in January, when a "satellite campus" of North Division was opened in downtown Milwaukee. Some 200 North students volunteered to attend classes at the campus, even though it meant transportation problems for almost all of them.

Most of them volunteered because they felt they could learn more in a better atmosphere. Eight weeks later, they still thought so.

"Over at the main building," says James Morton, president of the downtown campus student council, "there was too much pressure. Drilling was the rule. They made it seem like we were still children. When we came here, we set up our own program. It's looser, but everything gets done. If we blow this program we'll go back to North, but we want to see the program survive. We don't want that pressure all the time. It used to be that if you were late three times or something, you'd be suspended. You know, a guy could be an A student, but maybe he can't get to school on time."

True Cross-Section
Morton, a senior who spent three years at the main building before joining the new program, said there is a true cross-section of students at the downtown campus.

"The wrong word got out when this program started," he said. "Some people thought it was going to be a free-for-all, so they signed up. There were a few students I didn't think would fly right when they got here, but when they saw what it was all about, they shaped up."

Howell said the opening of the downtown campus "gave us a chance to disperse the concentration of work. Specialized instruction of problems we were given in reading, social studies, mathematics and English. But that doesn't mean we've simply transferred all 200 teachers and administrators to the satellite campus. That school in both places, we've cut compares with a 35-to-1 ratio at our discipline problems by at North's home plant.

"It's like moving into a new house," says Mrs. Sherma Corcampus gave the main building a little more room with which to work," Howell says. "It has given us room to expand our programs and start some new projects the teachers and students have been waiting for years."

Better Ratio
A better student-counselor ratio has been achieved, Howell says, and emphasis now can be placed on vocational "habilitation," job locations and job placement.

The satellite school, located in an abandoned, but acceptable school building, provides study programs to prepare students for college or the world.

get done—and without any trouble."

Says Sharon Herndon, "The classes are smaller here. You get a chance to confront the teachers with your problems."

"The teachers eat lunch in the same room as the students," added Morton. "That keeps things friendlier and lets you communicate with them."

At the main campus, meanwhile, tension, violence and absenteeism have been reduced—perhaps because it's less crowded or perhaps because of a sense of competition with the downtown facility.

"They're watching us, all right," says Everett Rupert, another downtown senior. "They're paying attention to what we're doing here."

"The First Ones"
"You can tell we're getting better here," says Morton, "because the kids at North are starting to call us 'dummies' and things like that. They know we're doing something good here and some of them want to put our program down. But I want to see this program grow because if it spreads, we were the first ones to do it, and nobody can take that away from us."

The pressing problems at North Division could no longer be deferred. Now, many of them have been virtually eliminated.

Other Troubled Schools
But there are other troubled schools in the Milwaukee system, which critics say has failed to keep up with rapidly changing times.

That is why North Division is just the showpiece—the prototype of the Milwaukee plan. Gousha calls a "sub-system approach to the problems of a large city school system."

Gousha says the community-oriented school system within a school system will "have an impact on all of the 165 Milwaukee public schools."

Eventually, the city's school system will be broken up into seven areas, each designed to bring about change and to raise the achievement level of pupils through programs tailored to the special needs of the area. It seems to have worked at schools, but where are they? his dairy barn, he says, so he figures the state can't afford them in its business either.

The Democratic legislator from Jacksonville has filed a bill in the legislature to restrict all state agencies to the use of black telephones.

Five Major Musical Programs at Lawrence

Chamber Orchestra of Saar, Gifted Classical Guitarist Series Headliners

BY JINGO

Music and more music is the melodic theme at Lawrence University these days with five different programs coming up in April.

not counting the many excellent student recitals scheduled.

Thursday and Friday night mark two programs of 20th century music for piano, voice, chamber groups and chorus. This is something new in presentation with 10 student instrumentalists, six faculty members and the 70-voice Lawrence Concert Choir working together for 8 p.m. recitals in Harper Hall.

Faculty members hope the program will lead to an annual event of this kind at Lawrence. The second of the two recitals coincides with a music weekend for high school junior and seniors on campus Friday and Saturday.

Thursday's program includes the "Concerto for Two Solo Pianos" (1950), by Igor Stravinsky, played by faculty pianists Robert Below and James Ming; Stravinsky's "Piano-Rag-Music" (1919), and "Piano Sonata in Two Movements, Op. 27" (1950), by George Perle, played by Below;

"Five Songs," by Charles Ives, sung by faculty soprano Kathleen Harris, with Below as accompanist, and Stravinsky's "Octet for Winds" (1923), James Ming, conductor.

Performers in the octet include Nancy Jayne, flute; Sarah Halajian, clarinet; John Sutte and William Robertson, bassoons; Edward Eagle and Paul Smith, cornets; and Stewart Ross and Mark Gerard, trombones. All are conservatory students.

Friday's program opens with the "Sextet for Piano and Winds" (1932-1939), by Francois Poulenc, to be played by Miss Jayne, Halajian, French hornist Peter Schmalz, oboist Jack Bar-ta, Sutte and Ming as pianist.

The performance continues with the choir, under the direction of Karl J. Erickson, singing Heinz Zimmerman's "Psalmkonzert" (1956). "Four Pieces for Clarinet and Piano" (1913), by Alban Berg, will be played by clarinetist Dan C. Sparks and pianist Theodore Rehl, both faculty members. The program will close with a repetition of the Stravinsky "Concerto for Two Solo Pianos," again played by Below and Ming.

Then comes the Lawrence Symphony Orchestra's second concert of the season at 8 p.m. Sunday in Memorial Chapel. Faculty pianist Clyde Duncan has been chosen soloist for this event. He will be heard in Manuel de Falla's "Noches en los Jardines de Espana," which translates to "Nights in the Gardens of Spain." It's a tone poem for piano and orchestra.

The concert also will highlight Verne Reynolds' "Celebration Overture," commissioned by the Lawrence Symphony for the inaugural year of the university's Music-Drama Center in 1959-60. The 70-member orchestra is led by Professor Kenneth Byler. Orchestra members are from the university and Fox Valley area.

All three concerts are open to the public free of charge.

Ticket sales are going on right now for two other concerts. One is the last program in Lawrence's Chamber Music Series, presenting Michael Lorimer, one of this country's gifted classical guitarists. This concert is at 8 p.m. Monday in Harper Hall.

The other is the last of the season Community Artist Series, which shouldn't be missed. The date is April 21, again on Monday. Concert time is 8 p.m. and the place is Lawrence Memorial Chapel.

The Chamber Orchestra of the Saar, under the baton of eminent cellist-conductor Antonio Janigro, will present this one. The 16-member orchestra is recognized as one of the world's most brilliant and most recorded baroque ensembles.

So, take a tip from Jingo and head for the Music-Drama Center box office at 115 N. Park Ave. It's open daily except Sunday from 12:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Kids' Minds Explored on CBS Special

BY TV SCOUT

9:30 - 10 - Channel 2 - Who, What, When, Where, Why explores the minds of children in an unusual and absorbing manner, through films the youngsters have made. The children are aged 5 to 18, and are taken from workshops in Lexington, Mass., and New York's Lower East Side. The works are all short pieces, some only a few seconds long, and others that tell an entire, though short story.

6:30-7:30 - Channel 11 - The Mod Squad borrowed Christopher Connelly from Peyton Place to play a convicted draft dodger. He has become the center of a dissident storm because his father is a general in Vietnam.

6:30-7:30 - Channel 5 - Michele Lee and the Osmond Brothers contribute to one of the better outings this season of The Jerry Lewis Show.

6:30-7:30 - Channel 2 - James Stacy, as Johnny Lancer, finds himself in a peculiar "Just what 'til your father gets home" situation on Lancer. The distraught "mother" here is Julie Sommars, a school teacher who can't cope with the undisciplined shenanigans of her charges.

7:30-8 - Channel 5 - Diahann Carroll, who has been accused of being a bit too sugary as the star of Julia, does it again tonight. This episode stars Gene Raymond as a heart specialist called in by Dr. Chegley (Lloyd Nolan) for a consultation.

7:30-8:30 - Channel 11 - The producers of It Takes a Thief seem to be intrigued by the idea of hiding secret information on a microdot that can become practically invisible when made to look like a girl's freckle or mole. They really go at it here with Mundy searching for the illusive spot at a beauty pageant.

7:30-8:30 - Channel 2 - June Lockhart is the newest Clara Appleby on The Red Skelton Hour, but she is overshadowed by Reta Shaw, who plays her mother. Singer Gloria Loring is an added guest.

8-10 - Channel 5 - The network must have gone to practically no expense at all in acquiring "Madame X," the feature on Tuesday Night at the Movies. It's the ancient tale of the little glamor girl from the wrong side of the tracks who marries big, gets into a triangular romantic situation and has that woe compounded by her mother-in-law, who gives her the "never darken our door again" treatment. Lana Turner plays the beleaguered lady with John Forsythe the husband, Keir Dullea her unknowing son, manager, and Craig Nuenaber, AM manager. The four students will operate the 10,500 watt educational station seven days per week and reach an estimated potential listening audience of more than 500,000.

'Fertility Drug' May Mean Multiple Births

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the new "fertility" drug that is causing all the multiple births? Would the chance of having twins be greatly increased by taking this drug? If so, does it have any bad side effects? — Mrs. R. J.

The drug is called Clomiphene, and appears to work by stimulating the ovaries. Couples should be warned in advance that multiple births are possible when the drug is used — which does not mean that twins or other multiples will always result, but there is much more chance of it.

The drug is intended for use in cases in which the husband has been proved to have an adequate sperm count but the wife still had difficulty in becoming pregnant. Such women should be in good health — especially free from any known liver disorder or pelvic disease. The drug is not advisable for women who have excessive menstrual bleeding.

Side effects? Yes, as is usual with most potent drugs, there can be side effects. Principal ones in this case are blurring or other disturbances of vision, abdominal or pelvic pain, and hot flashes.

Recommended practice is to use modest doses of the drug for five days. If pregnancy does not ensue, the dose is doubled, but beyond that, even if there still is no success, the size of the dose is not further increased. (The drug has no apparent effect on other endocrine glands, as pituitary, adrenal, or thyroid.)

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there a significant incidence of multiple births in pregnancies following use of the oral contraceptive pills or "birth control pills"? — Mrs. M. R.

Singer John Gary Young Hobby Club Appears April 17 Despite Injuries

Poster Board Decorations Used for Floral Displays

Singer John Gary, injured Friday in a motorcycle accident in California, will definitely appear as scheduled at Appleton High School auditorium as scheduled April 17, his agent said Monday.

His injuries were not as serious as had been reported, said a spokesman for the William Morris Agency, Inc., which handles Gary's bookings, told The Post-Crescent.

He's starting on an 18-city tour tomorrow (Tuesday), and I'm not cancelling a city."

The Associated Press reported Saturday that Gary suffered a leg injury, bruises and possible dislocation of his shoulders when his motorcycle struck a camper bus.

"He's out of the hospital already," the agent declared. "He had some abrasions and a few pulled muscles, but he starts his tour in Indianapolis Tuesday."

Gary's Appleton appearance is being sponsored by Variety Theatre and the Appleton Gallery of Arts.

Fresh or artificial flowers can be displayed in a group of framed bottles as shown in the illustration.

To make such a wall decoration start by cutting a panel of poster board. Apply a frame of colored mending tape.

Select several small bottles. Remove the labels. Decorate the bottles with enamel paint, applying stripes, polka dots, circles, triangles, squares, etc.

When the paint has dried, attach the bottles to the poster board with strong household glue.

After allowing time for the glue to dry, fill the bottles with flowers. If artificial flowers are used no water need be used. If the flowers are freshly-cut, water must be poured into the bottles. Do this with a small watering can. Be careful to avoid pouring water onto the poster board panel.

To change the water, take the frame from the wall and tip it forward over a sink so the water will pour out without getting the poster board wet.

you...and your First Wisconsin Charge Card.

It says good things about you at more than 13,000 retailers throughout the state.

When you go shopping with your First Wisconsin Charge Card, it says something about you wherever you use it.

It says that you're a pretty reliable person. That you are known and trusted by the sponsoring Charge Card bank in your area. And because you are, any merchant or service organization who honors your Charge Card will be paid promptly. By the bank.

It says your credit is good. No questions are necessary, because they've already been answered the minute you show your Charge Card.

It's the most convenient way to shop. It's all part of what makes shopping with your Charge Card so easy and pleasant. And so convenient. You can simply say, "Charge it." You don't need to carry cash or even a checkbook.

And remember, no matter how many places you use your Charge Card, you get just one monthly bill. (It cuts way down on your check-writing chores.)

When used as a regular charge plan, it's free. When you pay your Charge Card statement in full, you have 25 days of free credit beyond your billing date. If you want divided monthly payments, that's all right, too. Then your cost is just 1% per month of your average daily balance, plus a 25¢ service fee. That's considerably less than the cost of most "revolving" charge plans.

Don't forget the extra benefits you can enjoy. Your Charge Card lets you take advantage of "sales"—and make worthwhile savings—at many places where you wouldn't ordinarily have charging convenience.

It's a handy thing to have with you when you travel—"just in case." (Now you can apply for "Interbank" privileges, too, so your card can be used nationally.)

And you can borrow money on your Charge Card at participating banks throughout the state. Just let the teller know your needs, sign a receipt and you leave with cash in your pocket. It takes about a minute.

All these things can happen because your Charge Card says you're "OK"—that you've got the financial backing of a responsible bank.

Two simple, easy ways to apply for a First Wisconsin Charge Card.

If you don't yet have a Charge Card, why not apply now? It costs you nothing to get one. You can pick up an application form at any sponsoring bank or participating retailer. Or send us the coupon, below, and handle everything by mail. Do it now, while the thought is fresh in your mind.

Easter Bunny Joins Children at Egg Hunt

The Easter Bunny congratulates Nancy Brown who holds up the silver egg that's responsible for her big smile and the pair of roller skates tucked under her arm. (Post-Crescent Photos by Robert V. Baeten)

Long, tall ears, candy-filled basket, cottontail and all, the Easter Bunny put in a personal appearance Sunday noon at Riverview Country Club, where the grounds were dotted with brightly color Easter eggs and children eagerly awaited the signal to begin the traditional hunt.

Dressed in their Sunday best, the youngsters scrambled for the goodies, while their parents cheered them on, remembering the days when they peeked around trees and peered under leaves for that coveted egg that meant a special prize.

This year it was the discovery of a gold egg that won Thomas Calder a Jart game. To Nancy Brown, finder of the silver egg, went a pair of roller skates. And for the girl and boy who gathered the most eggs, there was enough candy to last until the next Easter Egg hunt.

Wearing a Wide Grin, Thomas Calder displays the golden egg that won him a Jart game at the Riverview Country Club Easter Egg Hunt.

the Easter Bunny turns tears into smiles as he pops an egg into her basket.

Children of Riverview Country Club members race helter-skelter for Easter eggs at the Easter Bunny's signal.

Your Problems At 32, He Still Vents Anger on Furniture

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was shocked at your advice to the mother whose 3 year-old had temper tantrums. You suggested that the child be taught to kick the furniture and "get the anger out of his system." I always thought you were a little cuckoo. Now I'm sure.

My younger brother used to kick the furniture when he got mad. Mother called it, "Letting things — not people."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please excuse my English. I come from Europe and my ability to write in your language is limited.

I have learned a lot from your column but I must tell you that you made a poor answer lately. You remarked that sometimes the sex battery in a husband goes dead because the wife acts bashful and is not active. You said to the wife, "Turn on the heat."

I had this same problem, only upside down. My husband agreed to go with me for counseling because we were not enjoying ourselves together. The counselor said I was too active and advised me to turn down the heat and let my husband lead in our love-making. The counselor explained that men become frightened when a woman is too eager.

Since we changed our ways things are much better. So please, Ann, change your advice — Love You Anyway

Dear Love: Sorry, Lamb Chop, but most men would love to be frightened like that.

Perhaps your husband prefers the shy type, but most men prefer a highly cooperative, responsive woman.

Your point is well taken, however. Married couples should be completely honest and let one another know what is pleasant and desirable. Each couple should write its own rules. There is no right or wrong in making love.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

off steam." Well, he's 32 years old now and still kicking the furniture — what's left of it, that is. He is also kicking his wife, the cat, the kids and anything else that gets in his way. Last October he threw the TV set out the window when his favorite football team failed to score and lost the game. (The window was closed at the time.) Why don't you tell mothers that children must be taught to control their anger? This is what separates civilized human beings from savages. Dummy — Star Witness

Dear Star: You, like some others who wrote to criticize, ignored the most important part of my answer.

I did not condone destroying furniture. I suggested that a punching bag or an old chair, specifically set aside for the purpose, be the object of the child's hostility. And p.s. — the most important part of my answer went like this: "Youngsters should be taught to vent their anger against

Spring to Reign at Fifth Annual Charity Brunch

Invitations for St. Elizabeth Hospital Auxiliary's fifth annual Charity Brunch to be from 11 a.m. through 2 p.m. April 27 at Butte des Morts Golf Club were mailed to interested persons in the Fox Valley Area today. General chairman of the event is Mrs. E. Patrick Toal, Mrs. Toal's daughter, Mrs. Robert Maas of Milwaukee, was designer of the invitation that heralds the maypole and spring blossom theme of the Brunch.

The auxiliary was organized in 1958 to bring greater community interest and under standing to the hospital and to assist with fund raising. Also it provides volunteer services both inside and outside of the hospital. Part of this service program includes the Gift Shop at the hospital which was started in 1961. Inservice volunteers can be found at work at the shop as well as serving as escorts, receptionists, beauticians, librarians, flower arrangers and book cart hostesses.

The auxiliary's last pledge of $50,000 to the hospital building fund, made in March 1962 was paid in March, 1965. The second pledge of $50,000, made in March 1965, was partially paid in 1968 and has a current balance of $26,700.

In addition to the Brunch, an annual spring fund raising event, the auxiliary has a Harvest Fair, a major undertaking each fall. Bridge tournaments, house parties and the Gift Shop are other activities that help the auxiliary to honor its pledge.

Brunch proceeds will be donated to the Hospital Building fund and the Medical Fund to aid and assist the School of Medical Technology which was established in June, 1967.

At the present time there are 703 auxiliary members, about half of which are active. Of this number approximately 22 per cent are from an area immediately south and west of Appleton.

Committees for the brunch include tickets, Mrs. B. A. Pfefferle and Mrs. Lloyd Jack, co-chairmen, Mrs. Jerome Capitaine and Mrs. Joseph Gossens, Kimberly, reservations, Mrs. Elmer Honkamp, chairman, decorations, Mrs. Leonard Smith, chairman, Mrs. Gustave Keller, Mrs. Ralph Kennedy, and Mrs. Frank Leisen, Menasha, hospitality, Mrs. Burnell Abel, chairman, Mrs. Raymond Tolton, Mrs. Ben Rusky and Mrs. Alan Mulder, publicity, Mrs.

Gordon Gill, Mrs. Clifford Vincent and Mrs. Robert Scherzinger.

Because reservations are necessary, persons interested in attending the brunch have been asked to contact Mrs. Pfefferle, Mrs. Jack or Mrs. Honkamp for further information. Tickets may be purchased at the hospital gift shop.

Bob Hope Entertains Campus Troops

BY ERMA BOMBECK

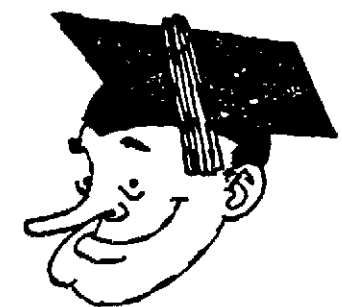

Boy, is Bob Hope gutsy! I was impressed when he toured Vietnam armed only with a golf club and Miss World. But now I read where he's going to be a commencement speaker.

The outskirts of Saigon is one thing, but when you play to a college campus these days, you're asking for it. Can't you just hear him addressing the class of 1969?

"It was nice of you kids to meet my plane. You could have held your gunfire until we landed. Seriously though, it's a real thrill for me to be here. I've had a lovely visit with your President (boos). He's alive and well and living in a janitor's closet under guard in the electrical engineering building.

"Really, it's a nice little college you've got here. Who makes out your curriculum? General Westmoreland?"

"Things sure have changed when I was in college. We had a course in marriage. We just never had a lab with it. I'm kidding. I think the youth of today are wonderful. Where else can you go to school on a burn-as-you-go basis? You all know what misery is, don't you? It's setting fire to the college post office where your semester tuition checks come from Daddy to keep you in school getting the decent education he never had.

"Actually I should have grown a beard before I came here. I feel like a pom pom girl. I approached a senior today who was wearing a bushy beard down to his belt buckle and said, 'Where does a fella eat around here?' 'I don't know,' he said, 'I carry my lunch.' I said, 'I know.'"

"Really, I don't blame you kids for picketing the cafeteria. I'm not saying the food is bad. Only that three raisins walked off my toast this morning and joined the picket lines."

"Ah, Graduation Day. This is the time you leave your unfilled years behind you. No more rioting, no more protesting, no more sit-ins, no more home made bombs in the gym, no more checks from home. I want you to know that we civilians appreciate what you're doing in this vast God-forsaken wasteland, 30 miles from your homes. You could have joined the Army or gotten a job but you chose to stay here on the campus and fight."

"I've got Phyllis Diller with me. She's not graduating. She flunked showers. Bing would have loved to be here but he's moderating a Planned Parenthood seminar. We'll all sing one chorus of White Christmas before we hand out the diplomas. . . and God willing all of you will be home next year."

Mark my word, if Hope keeps that up, he'll turn into an insurance risk.

West opened the ace of hearts and then led a trump to South's queen. South returned a trump to dummy's 10, ruffed dummy's 10 of hearts and then led a diamond to dummy's king.

East ruffed and returned the king of clubs to make dummy ruff. Now South could make only nine tricks. Down one.

South should have foreseen the 5-0 diamond break. East's jump to three clubs indicated a suit of at least six cards. East was also known to have four trumps and to hearts. East could hold only one diamond if he had a six-card club suit; he would hold no diamonds at all if he had seven clubs.

Should Ruff Club

Instead of leading a diamond to dummy's king South should have ruffed a club in dummy. West's failure to follow suit would mark East with seven clubs and therefore no diamonds.

Declared would then draw the rest of the trumps, saving five diamonds and one heart in dummy. If West saved either four or five diamonds, declarer would cash the king of hearts and then lead a diamond, allowing dummy to win three tricks and with the A-K-9 of diamonds.

If West saved only three diamonds, declarer would give up a diamond at once. Then dummy would win the rest with the king of hearts and the diamonds.

Scouts Serve Breakfast on Easter Morn

Easter was a time for renewing faith and fellowship among churchgoers throughout the Fox River Valley. Perhaps the most popular way of promoting the latter was the traditional Easter breakfast served after sunrise services.

For members of Trinity English Evangelical Lutheran Church, the event was the work of Boy Scout Troop No. 10. Up with the sun, the boys assisted in the preparation and supervised the serving of the sausages, pancakes, milk and coffee.

Proceeds will be used to help finance the troop's trip to the Boy Scout Jamboree in New Mexico.

Lovelier You

By Mary Sue Miller

Walking in Beauty

Teen loveliness is affected as much by a girl's grace as by her face. However appealing your face, your BIQ (Beauty Intelligence Quotient) takes a big dip if ever you scamper, clomp or flop along. Nothing can bolster the rating of a girl with an awkward, gauche walk. Not even the niftiest pantsuit!

Worse, poor carriage endangers your figure, verve and personality appeal. Shall we walk in beauty? Here's how:

1. Stand tall, feet together and knees flexed. Step out by lifting left leg a fraction off floor and moving foot forward with toes pointing straight ahead; let major action flow from hip joint.

2. Place heel lightly on floor, one pace ahead of right foot. As heel touches floor, transfer weight through center of foot. Then "grip" floor with toes. And follow up with right foot.

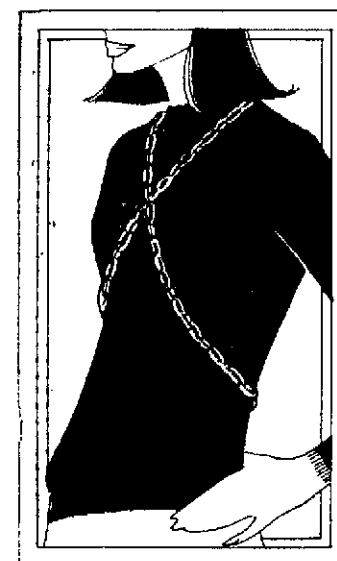

3. Continue walking and, as you go, add these skills: Keep feet moving on two imaginary parallel lines that run two inches apart. Let arms swing relaxed, close to sides and no further than length of steps. Work throughout to lighten steps.

To test your aptitude, listen to the sound of your steps on a linoleum-covered floor. You can pat yourself on the back when the beat falls evenly and almost soundlessly.

(If you have a loveliness problem, write to me about it in care of The Post-Crescent. Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope. I will find the answer and let you know as soon as possible).

State Suit Seeks $32,548 In Clintonville Fish Loss

Calumet Body Considering County Relief

Claim Damages in Pidgeon Pond Draining; Mayor Calls Special City Council Session for Tuesday

Social Services Board Requests Local Opinions on Suggestion

The Calumet County Board of Social Services is giving serious consideration to establishing a county system of relief — one of the recommendations stressed in the Tarr Task Force committee report.

Presently there is a bill pending in the Legislature to eliminate the local relief or unit system and make countywide relief programs mandatory. Florence Woelfel, director of the Calumet County Department of Social Services, has sent letters to public officials and civic leaders throughout the county asking them to make their opinions known to legislators from their respective districts.

Provisions of Bill

The pending bill would provide for: —County administration of relief by the county Department of Social Services, as it is known in Calumet County, or county welfare departments in other parts of the state. —Uniform statewide standards as established in the Social Security aid programs. —A more uniform interpretation of dependency relating to general relief. —State cost-sharing on program and administration. —The Wisconsin Public Welfare Association, which has long advocated the implementation of a mandatory county system of relief has prepared a fact sheet on needed changes in the present relief system, which the pending bill would do and what passage of the bill into law would mean," Mrs. Woelfel said.

She explained the board of social services wanted to know what the feelings of Calumet County residents are in regard to a countywide relief system. Request Discussion The request was made to have the proposal discussed at local town board, village and city council meetings, and to make opinions known to Calumet County Board supervisors representing their respective municipalities.

The second precinct of Appleton's 9th Ward is in Calumet County. In Appleton, strong opposition to the county system of relief comes from Merton Ehrlicke, the city's relief director, whose office would be closed and operations absorbed into the county program. Ehrlicke claims relief can best be administered on a local basis and cites his department as an example of efficiency and economy because of the "home rule" operation. On the other hand, Mayor George Buckley has been pushing for administration of all relief on a county basis. He has asked officials of the Outagamie County Board to consider a takeover of local relief programs. At last count, 41 counties have dropped the unit system in favor of countywide administration of relief services. The fact sheet of the Wisconsin Public Welfare Association, which Mrs. Woelfel enclosed with her letter, says the present

Expect Denial

In response, Mayor Frank Sinkewitz, acting on the advice of City Atty. Ralph Lauer, has called a special meeting of the city council for 5:05 p.m. Tuesday to determine the city's course of action. Sinkewitz noted that the matter would be in Lauer's hands.

"We simply haven't decided what to do," said Lauer. "We will deny liability I would assume," he added, explaining the council should determine a course of action.

Claims Negligence

The Pigeon Pond, (Clintonville mill pond level was lowered about 30 to 33 inches during July and again dropped later in the month to the river bed to allow cleaning of the area and dam repair.

The lawsuit filed against the city April 3 claims the city was negligent in lowering the water level of the mill pond "and that the lowering of the water was unauthorized by the Department of Natural Resources," according to Steve Hansen, assistant district attorney for Waupaca County.

Hansen said statements that verbal permission was received by Department of Natural Resources men allowing the project "have no merit." He said his information indicates the permission was ap-

Waupaca County Needs Foster Homes

BY FERN SMITH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
WAUPACA — There is a growing need for foster homes in Waupaca County, but a specific need for a large number as possible for two boys, 8 and 11 years of age, the social services department has disclosed.

not being used at the moment, there are shortages of homes to fit specific needs of the children entrusted to our care," Robert Jarentowski, assistant director, said. The first thing a person who wishes to become a foster parent must ask himself is "Why do I want to help these children?" According to Susan Ayres, social worker who spends all of her time matching foster children to foster parents, one has to find the right answer to this question of motivation.

Little White Following closely on the heels of this question and the answer are others, such as "Do I understand children? Do children understand me? Can I treat a child like my own, knowing that he is to be mine for just a little while?" "What we are looking for is a stable home, with adequate room for the child and he or she must have a bed of his own," Miss Ayres explains.

There are other questions which men and women who are contemplating becoming foster parents must ask, too. Will I get help from the social worker, if a disciplinary, or similar problem arises? How often will I see the social worker? Can I afford to take an extra child in my home? How long can I keep the child?

Worker Helps

In quick succession, Miss Ayres answers these few questions. The social worker will help in every way she can and sees the foster child and the foster parents once a week to start.

The health and social services department pays $70 per month for board and room for a child; $5 to $9 per month for small items of clothing and pays for major clothing items as needed; gives $1 a month school allowance and from $2 to $3 for a personal allowance. The variance in amounts is determined by the age of the child.

Some placements are for a short time, others long term. But none are permanent arrangements. It is possible that one foster parent cannot handle a child with a specific kind of problem, and when needed, these changes are made by the department.

Foster Care

There are 26 foster homes in Waupaca County and 32 children receiving foster care. "We feel very fortunate when we are able to keep children from one family together," Miss Ayres said.

A home can be licensed for foster care in as little time as two weeks and the license is granted by the local social services agency.

Who are these children who need foster care — to be reared, helped, cherished while their own dads and moms can't do it? They may have to be away from home because of illness, separation, divorce, abuse, neglect, or death.

Bradley Boese, 18, Killed While He Walked on Highway

OSHKOSH — An 18-year-old Oshkosh youth became Winnebago County's third 1969 road fatality and one of nine killed on Wisconsin highways this week-end when he was struck late Saturday night while walking along U.S. 45 about one mile north of here.

Bradley Boese, 814 Winnebago Ave., apparently died instantly shortly before midnight when struck by a car driven by Terry Jefferson, 22, 38 Bowen St., Oshkosh. Winnebago Coroner Art. C. Miller said Boese died of a broken neck.

Driver Hospitalized

Jefferson, who was driving north, also was hospitalized for shock.

The district attorney's office is investigating. Wisconsin's 1969 road toll is 174, far behind the 257 at this time in record 1968. Most of the weekend deaths came on Easter Sunday.

An Oak Creek man, Lester Schroeder, 20, was killed Sunday when his motorcycle collided with a train at an Oak Creek crossing.

Two Rosholt brothers died Sunday when struck by a car while they were walking along a Portage County road. Killed were Stanley Ostrowski, 47, and Barney Ostrowski, 57.

WAUPACA — A Scandinavian youth remains in critical condition this morning at Theda Clark Hospital, Neenah, where he was taken after an accident early Sunday morning on State 22, west of Waupaca.

Larry Abrahamson, 18, route 1, received serious head injuries when the car he was driving left the road at Dead Man Curve, overturned twice and landed on its top. The driver was thrown from the car.

County Patrolman John Bonnell said he was traveling toward Waupaca at the time when Abrahamson passed the police car at a very high rate of speed just before the curve.

The car he was driving was demolished. Abrahamson was taken to Riverside Community Hospital by Holly's Ambulance and transferred to Theda Clark Hospital Sunday morning.

To Lessen Deficit Assembly Bill Would Give Unclaimed Property to State

MADISON — A bill providing for the transfer of unclaimed property to the state has been introduced into the Legislature as a means of lessening an anticipated state budget deficit.

The bill would provide an estimated gain to the state treasury of $1.5 million a year, according to calculations by the state department of justice. The bill was introduced in the Assembly by the rules committee.

Such a gain for the state treasury would help the Legislature to bridge a budget revenue gap, and reduce slightly the risk of alienating the voting electorate.

Similar to Others The bill proposes a rule similar to those now in effect in some other states, including near-by Indiana and Michigan, and would provide that the state shall be the custodian of funds unclaimed by owners for 10 years which are held by financial organizations, life insurance companies, utilities, fiduciaries, business associations and others, or for 15 years in the case of traveller's checks.

Under present law, some unclaimed funds are forfeited to the holder. The bill would provide that unclaimed property could be recovered at any time by the owner or heirs, and that the state of the owner's last known address is entitled to the unclaimed funds or property.

The state treasurer would administer the act, and publish notices and reports of unclaimed property. The state could sell such unclaimed assets and deposit the receipts in the state school fund, or the state general tax fund, according to the decision of a court.

NEW LONDON — Kindergarten registration for the New London public schools will be Friday, according to William Caskey, elementary supervisor.

The 1969-70 registration will be from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 to 4 p.m. at the Lincoln, Sugar Bush and Readfield Schools. Parents must bring a birth or baptismal certificate and a record of the child's immunizations upon registration.

Children must be five-years-old by Oct. 1 to be eligible for the 1969-70 kindergarten class. Caskey stressed there would be no exceptions to the rule.

Registration will be in Room 114 at the Lincoln School, Room 38 at the Sugar Bush School, and Room 2 at Readfield.

Parents are asked to comply with the registration date. Parents who can't register their child on the scheduled date may contact the Lincoln School for assistance.

Registration also will be Friday at Emanuel Lutheran School. Registration will be from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 4:30 p.m. under the direction of Mrs. DuWaine Scheid, kindergarten teacher.

A child must be five-years-old by Oct. 1 to be eligible to enroll.

Suspected Marijuana Incidents Unproven

BY MYRNA COLLINS

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Police and school officials in smaller Outagamie County communities agree for the most part that marijuana probably is being used by some youths there as well as by some young people in the Fox Cities. But all agree that they have been unable to find proof so far of the rumored sale and use of drugs.

Seymour Police Chief William Hietpas says "We're not naive enough to think that this is the only area to have escaped. We have good reason to suspect that marijuana, and possibly other things, are being used here." He adds, however, that there is no proof to back up suspicions.

Police and school officials concentrate on trying to keep young people from becoming experimenters with narcotics by pointing out the dangers of using drugs. Programs have been presented and are planned for high school groups and adults, both by the Seymour and by Appleton police officials.

Usage Rumored

Seymour High School Principal John Peterson says, too, that there are rumors, but nothing more. Though efforts have been made to follow up on suspected marijuana incidents, officials have been unable to substantiate any of them.

"If there is any problem here, it's awfully small and awfully quiet," New London Police Chief Jack Algiers said of the possible use of marijuana by young people in that area.

Narcotics Session

He admitted there had been "a few rumors," but blamed these largely on "people who let their imaginations run away with them." Police have made efforts to follow up on the rumors, but have been unable to find anything that could be taken as evidence of drug use.

New London High School officials recently sent student council members to a session on narcotic use presented in

This is the first of a three-part series discussing drug abuse problems in the Fox Valley. Today's installment concerns the situation in Outagamie County. Succeeding stories will explore the problem in Calumet and Waupaca counties.

Madison. Films, tapes and other information have been made available for teachers to use in social studies classes, according to M. John Huppler, guidance counselor.

Appleton police narcotics experts also have presented programs on the dangers of the use of marijuana and drugs to students on both the high and junior high school level.

"No problems so far," is the way both Shiocton and Hortonville school officials have described conditions. Both schools have provided informational programs for young people, and officials in the two schools are hopeful that problems will continue to be averted.

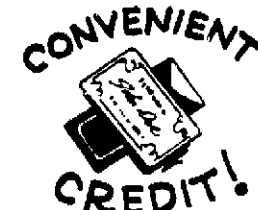

Police Chief Douglas Jones of Hortonville pointed out that police from all over the area meet monthly to keep up on methods of crime prevention and control and that these meetings often center on the possible use of narcotics among young people. "If police in one area know of a pusher or user, they make sure police everywhere know about him, too," he said.

Board, Committee Disagree on County Airport Priorities

Control Tower or Taxiway?

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The Outagamie County Board airport committee was warned Monday to change its project priorities or run the risk of losing favor with the county board for future allocations.

County Board Chairman Sylvester Esler, Appleton, told the committee it should drop plans for building taxiways at this time on the northwest-southeast runway. The Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) has approved a $294,000 grant for the project, but the county's share amounts to $377,000, of which nearly $100,000 must be allocated.

Unless it changes priorities, Esler said a control tower would be the next priority, and the committee had been going on this basis.

Control Tower
He said the county airport needs a control tower more at this time than the taxiways.

That should be our first priority," he said, noting it is important as a safety factor at the fast-growing airport.

Supv. John Dietz, Appleton, committee chairman, said he did not disagree, but added: "If you abandon this project (taxiways) now, there will be no money for it from the FAA ever."

Dietz and other committee members also questioned whether the $313,000, which is part of the county's share, would be rebated to the county if the project was dropped. This money is owed to the county by the federal government on a slow-to-arrive grant for land acquisition at the new airport site.

Specific Use
Supv. Charles Wussow, Appleton, said the state had been clear that the money must be used in this project. Quoting from a State Department of Transportation letter, he said the use is "firm and specific" and "can't be transferred (to another project) if not designated." He said the county has no alternative.

Esler contended the money belonged to the county and the taxiway project onto the could be used for other projects, county with intimations it namely a tower. He noted would otherwise lose its $313,000 expenditures at the airport have rebate

He questioned who had approved the $3,000 to $4,000 for preliminary engineering for the taxiways

"What if the county board doesn't approve that money," he asked. "Who's going to pay the engineers?"

Esler suggested the state had taken the initiative and had been evasive in putting anything in writing about the status of the project.

"They can't make us use our money ($313,000)," he said.

The committee discussed the question at length with Esler county board, there'll be no money," Esler warned. He not-which undoubtedly will be de-cutive secretary, but took no ed the county board had never mandated of the airport in the action.

In other business, the com-mittee was requested by Kim-berly-Clark to lease part of its hangar to another concern but the committee decided to ask K-C to first give the county the chance to rent its own hangars.

Charles Olson, airport manager, He was told to contact K-C offi-charged the state was pushing cials.

3 Car Rental Firms Get Airport Space

Committee Reverses Earlier Decision to Allow Single Agency

The Outagamie County Board airport committee reversed an earlier decision Monday and gave tentative agreement to allow three car rental agencies to have counters in the county airport terminal.

The move came after Mil-waukee attorney Ralph Podell, representing the Oshkosh firm, that has the Avis car rental, remodeled the cramped terminal to provide room for the Avis counter.

Indications were that the local

Hertz rental agency franchise would join Avis in the remodel-ing, expected to cost about $2,000.

No New Contract
The committee had agreed last month to allow counter space only for National car rental since it had established a counter in the terminal a year ago. No new contract had been signed.

After being denied counter space in March, Oshkosh Auto and Truck Rental, Inc., the Avis franchise, advised the airport committee that it would ask for litigation in the matter unless competitive bids were taken for the space.

E. H. Wallschlaeger, Oshkosh Auto president, pointed out that the county was, in effect, granting National an exclusive contract and by doing so was losing $4,800 in additional income from rental space at the terminal. He also noted that the law calls for competitive bids on such exclusive contracts.

Triple Revenues
Podell then came up with an offer which he said would at least triple revenues for the county. He offered to pay $2 per foot rental, plus $250 per month or 10 per cent of sales, whichever is greater.

This guarantees the county a minimum of $9,000 a year from sales alone, if the three agencies have space, he said. National had been contracted a year ago for 10 per cent of sales.

"This is the first concrete proposal we've had from Avis," commented Supv. Paul Kostka, Little Chute.

Podell also said, with three agencies, the incoming custom-ers would be served better.

The committee agreed to have a one-year contract drawn up to present to the three rental agencies, beginning in May when National's present contract runs out.

Authority Questioned Spice Challenges Committee

Outagamie County Sheriff Calvin Spice today questioned the authority of the county board's courts, justice and enforcement committee and criticized its two most recent direc-tives

In a letter to the executive committee, Spice asked that the enforcement committee's powers be clarified. He said the committee had overstepped its boundaries.

Spice became angered last week when the committee issued directives to take away Traffic Lt. Lowell Veitch's patrol car and to send six department recruits to a five-week training program at the Vocational school at Neenah.

Wrong Moves
Spice indicated both moves were wrong and termed the committee "a committee of layment who meet half a day per week."

Supv. Eugene Kloes, Appleton, committee chairman, defended the directives and argued that county board committees do have authority over department heads.

He criticized Spce for carrying on a "personal vendetta" and having "little hostilities" against certain training officers

School Conferences Friday in Kimberly

KIMBERLY — Parent conferences for public school pupils from first through sixth grades and special education classes will be held Friday. There will be no classes for students on that day.

Achievement tests have been given all youngsters from grades one through six and report cards will be issued Wednesday, to permit parents to learn if a pupil is working up to capabilities.

at Neenah and also against the committee.

The committee considered Veitch an administrative officer, he said, who could be in the office most of the time analyzing reports and conferring with sergeants.

Job Description
"We don't pay him to patrol," said Kloes. He admitted the job description does call for Veitch to patrol "at his leisure".

Kloes said the school was part of an effort to centralize police training facilities in the area. He countered Spice's claim it would cost the county $2,000 in wages and expenses to send the six patrolmen to Neenah.

"It's the lowest cost program," he said.

Supv. Marvin Babbitt, Seymour, said he basically agrees with the committee's directives, but is critical of the method it used. He said it went about the action in a backward manner.

Esier said that Spice and Veitch should be brought before the executive committee to give their side of the story. It was agreed to call them in for the afternoon session.

Appraisers To Determine Land Worth

16 Properties at Safety Building Site To Be Evaluated

The Outagamie County Board executive committee agreed this morning that two appraisers should be hired to determine the value of 16 properties adjacent to the courthouse, the proposed site of a joint city-county safety building.

The resolution will be presented to the county board next week and also is contingent on the city agreeing to pay half of the $2,400 cost.

The committee also agreed that the county board will have to give the go-ahead on the building before the appraisers are hired. Under tentative plans, the county would build the structure and lease a portion of it to the city.

County Board Chairman Sylvester Esler, Appleton, said the owners of the properties will not give prices for their property, and court action is likely. One owner did quote a price about twice the equalized valuation.

Esler said the city was expected to decide last week whether it will share in the appraisers' fees, but the question did not come up at the city council meeting.

A joint Appleton city council-county board committee has been meeting for several months to work out an agreeable proposal on a joint building.

Youth Fined $50 For Taking Shoes

Terry Scheer, 18, 606 N. Bateman St., was fined $50 and costs or 12 days in jail Monday after pleading guilty of stealing a $13.97 pair of shoes from Treasure Island the evening of March 14.

The court was told that Scheer put on the shoes and fled from the store. He was recognized by a store clerk.

Trial Shifted To Appleton

NLRB Case Will Convene Next Week At Courthouse

A National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) trial — recessed abruptly at Oshkosh recently when a company lawyer was found in contempt — will be reconvened next Tuesday in Appleton.

Three Appleton-based unions were charged by the government with unfair labor practices on the complaint of Oshkosh Ready Mix.

They are Teamsters Local 563, Operating Engineers Local 139 and Plumbers and Steamfitters Local 456.

Attorney Russ R. Mueller, Milwaukee was held in contempt by trial judge Eugene F. Frey of Washington, D. C. Mueller was representing Inland Trucking Co. and Wesley Mielahn, co-partners of Oshkosh Ready Mix.

It was the first contempt citation in the 34-year history of NLRB trials in Wisconsin.

Preliminary COG Report

Law Enforcement Agencies in Valley Need Added Manpower

More manpower is the chief need of law enforcement agencies in the Fox Valley.

This was the conclusion of a preliminary, bare bones outline submitted today to the law enforcement technical advisory committee of the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG).

Thomas J. Ellwood, director of law enforcement planning for COG, compiled the report after talking with law enforcement agencies throughout the valley.

"Just about everybody told me that manpower was the number one need in the area," Ellwood said.

Other Needs

Other needs in the order of priority seen by Ellwood were training and education, records analysis, equipment, construction and rehabilitation.

Ellwood explained, however, that he did not consider this order rigid, but "just a listing of problem areas" which is necessary before the state and the Fox Valley can become eligible for federal aids under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968.

Funds Available

Ellwood will submit his report to the Wisconsin Council on Criminal Justice later this week, after which municipalities which are members of COG will be eligible to apply for state grants.

Some $300,000 to $400,000 in funds is available for grants within the state until June 30.

Ellwood said he will assist (COG) member communities in applying for grants after he submits his report to the state.

COG cannot apply for grants for the area as a whole, however.

Officials Comment

Ellwood, with review and assistance from the advisory committee, which includes representatives of local government, industry, the courts, police departments, and religion, will prepare a long range comprehensive plan to be submitted to the state by Aug. 31 which will make the area eligible for the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. Discussion this morning indicated that needs other than manpower, including ways of improving cooperation and communications among area law enforcement agencies, will receive much greater attention in the long range plan.

Menasha Police Chief Lester Clark, an advisory committee member, said he saw a future need for an IBM computer records system for the whole area. Kaukauna Mayor Gilbert Anderson said he felt greater cooperation in training among police agencies could greatly reduce costs.

Intrest also was expressed in an emergency communications system, a hallway house, and establishment of a juvenile court.

All grants received through the Omnibus Crime Bill will present to the three rental agencies, beginning in May when National's present contract runs out.

Talks to Resume in 10-Month Contractor, Teamster Dispute

Hearing to be Held on Youth Employment

MADISON — A public hearing will be held at 10:30 a.m. April 22 at the Outagamie County courthouse on proposed liberalization of restrictions on employment of minors.

Two other hearings are scheduled this month on the proposals — April 15 in Eau Claire and April 24 in Madison.

The Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations reported today one proposal would exempt high school graduates and students in school-work training programs between 16 and 18 from child labor hazardous employment restrictions. The change was suggested by an advisory committee of the department.

Youths 18 and older are not covered by the rules. Another proposed rule change would permit youths between 16 and 18 to work in stores in which liquor is sold only in accord is Phillip Simon, Green Bay, of the U.S. Conciliation tion off the premises. The youth and Mediation Service, would not be permitted to sell the intoxicants, and would have to work under the supervision of a licensed operator.

Strike Has Affected Construction From Fond du Lac to Green Bay

Crucial contract talks between representatives of the Fox Valley Contractors Association and four Teamsters Union locals will be resumed at Oshkosh Friday, it was learned today.

The old three-year pact expired June 1, 1968 but under mutual agreement the terms remain in effect until succeeded by a new contract.

The association, comprised of 50 major construction firms and about 100 smaller associate contractors in the Fox Valley, was hard hit by trade union strikes last summer.

Outcome of the current contract talks will have an effect from Fond du Lac north to Green Bay.

5 Sessions

A spokesman for the association says there have been five bargaining sessions since last June. The federal mediator assigned to assist labor and management negotiators reach agreement is Phillip Simon, Green Bay, of the U.S. Conciliation tion off the premises. The youth and Mediation Service, would not be permitted to sell the intoxicants, and would have to work under the supervision of a licensed operator.

negotiations. They are members of Joint Council 39.

The terms of the union demands and association's offer have not been divulged but are expected to become public knowledge by the end of the week.

With the construction season under way, the association and unions will be heading into the home stretch as far as talks are concerned.

"Considerable importance can be attached to the outcome of Friday's meeting," a high-ranking union official said today.

And a spokesman for the association echoed his comments.

The major construction firms are reportedly gearing for a busy season with several major projects planned throughout the Fox Valley.

It was reported that union and management representatives swapped counter proposals at the last mediation session about two weeks ago.

Coroner Sees Need For a County Morgue

Outagamie County Coroner definite, the space could be used "for other purposes."

"The need, I'm sure, will be there long before the contemplated building has outlived its purpose," Kemps explained.

Unless other arrangements are made by families, dead persons now are assigned to funeral homes on a rotation basis. Often it later is learned that those in charge of handling arrangements would have preferred a different funeral home.

Kemps also explained that a morgue could contain special facilities and equipment he needs in his work.

Also, evidence gathered by the coroner's office and law enforcement agencies could be as reasons behind the need for a more securely preserved in a morgue. He said that until the county morgue, according to Kemp's

$100,000 Saved In School Planning

NEENAH — Architectural drawings showing a savings of over 5,000 square feet and nearly $100,000 on the new Neenah high school were given preliminary approval Monday night by the board of education.

John Shaver of Shaver and Co., the Salina, Kan., architectural firm hired to design the new high school, submitted plans which make use of circular design.

The plans which will go to the final drawing boards in about a month include the central core academic area, a circular shop area with a mezzanine, business education, administration, science, music, home economics and arts and crafts, all designed for 1,500 students.

More Functional

Shaver said the decision to go with a circular industrial arts area was prompted by two factors. "First, it is cheaper to build," he said, "and secondly, it is more functional."

With the circular design, more square feet of space can be enclosed with a smaller amount of outside wall space and identical supporting radial beams can be used, cutting down on material cost, according to Shaver.

"By starting with 12-foot high outside walls and sloping them up to the center where it will be high enough to accommodate a second level industrial arts classroom, we can save more money," he explained.

Industrial Arts

The school's mechanical equipment, originally planned for a corner of the industrial arts wing, was moved to the central supply area. "By doing this, we can scale down the entire building," he said, "and eliminate about 33,578 square feet."

Each of the four corners of the academic core are earmarked for student commons. Original plans called for lockers to be included in the commons. Shaver's revised plans now have the lockers in U-shaped alcoves around the academic core.

Attorney's Fee Again Being Disputed in Board Committee

OSHKOSH — The dispute over defense of Piette and $865 for a bill from a court-appointed attorney, dating back to last summer, will be back before the county board's judiciary committee again Monday.

County Judge James V. Sitter and Corporation Counsel Gerald Engeldinger have been requested to meet with the committee, Engeldinger then filed an application for review of the charges in Sitter's court to open the way for either changing the bill or having it referred to a higher court for review.

A meeting with Engeldinger and Dist. Atty. Thomas Fink also will be held to clear up problems involving the issuance of legal opinions on non-criminal matters.

The committee heard reports that during periods of Engeldinger's absence, people have been refused legal opinions on matters from the district attorney's office on the grounds they deal only in criminal matters.

No major changes in county board rules were proposed by the committee although Supv. Robert Johnson, Towns of Clayton and Vinland, questioned the pay provision for County Board meetings.

Johnson noted that supervisors receive a full day's pay even if they only attend half of the board meeting.

He also noted that with board meetings starting at 10 a.m., they "often adjourn for lunch by 11:30 and then don't start again until 1:30 or 2 p.m."

However, other committee members said that since no formal request had been received to move the starting time of board meetings back to 9:30 a.m., this matter would have to be initiated on the board floor.

Emergency Meeting of Area Officials Called By Kamp on Bridge

MENASHA — Town of Menasha Chairman Roland Kamp has called a special meeting of political and economic representatives of the northern half of Winnebago County in an attempt to get plans for a bridge across Little Lake Butte des Morts off dead center.

Kamp's move comes only a few days after the state offered to spend $500,000 to replace the Main Street Bridge in Oshkosh. The City of Oshkosh and the county will be called upon to provide the other $1 million to complete the project.

The session for representatives of Neenah and Menasha, county board supervisors from the Twin City area and Chamber of Commerce officials will be held at the town hall at 6 p.m. Monday.

Union Ordered Not To Picket at King

WAUPACA — An injunction District Court of the Eastern District of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, ordered that "no force or threat of force be used to require, induce or coerce any person to picket at or in the vicinity of the Faulks Brothers to recognize or bargain with the union, or any other labor organization unless or until that union or any other such labor organization has been certified as the representative of Faulks employees."

The legal action was another part of the seven-month-old strike of the Teamsters against Faulks Brothers Construction Co., which is supplying ready-mix concrete to the Woerfel Corp. construction site and two other construction projects now underway at the Grand Army Home.

No Force
"This really is just a legal tool which prohibits picketing and any other action which might force or require the Woerfel Corp. or any other persons, to quit using, handling, transporting or dealing in our products," explained Sidney Faulks, an owner of the firm.

In addition the order given by Judge Robert E. Tehan, U. S.

Committees Say COG Should Stay In Present Offices

The Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) should remain in its present quarters in the Zuelke Building, 103 W. College Ave., Appleton, a joint policy-finance committee agreed Monday afternoon.

The group met in a special and informal session to determine whether the growing COG technical staff should be relocated. Several proposals and locations were presented.

Eugene E. Franchetti, COG executive director, said that officials of the Zuelke Building have offered to remodel and expand facilities for COG on its 12th floor. The per square foot monthly rental would be $535, including air conditioners in each room, which is considerably lower than the other proposals.

A three-year lease runs out in May and the joint committee is proposing another three-year agreement.

Several Hundred Volunteers, including housewives, Lawrence students and members of the Business and Professional Women's Club have volunteered their services to participate in the residential fund drive of the Outagamie County chapter, American Cancer Society, scheduled from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday.

Doorbells Will Ring Monday Volunteers to Solicit Cancer Crusade Funds

Those homes not visited Monday will be visited later in the week. Distributed will be leaflets containing the seven warning signs of cancer. The goal of the crusade is $26,000. It is hoped that $8,000 can be raised in the residential canvass. Each year the society spends $20,000 to support research and stages programs in public and professional education. Free cancer dressings, sick-room equipment and transportation is available to patients in the county.

Teens 'Exposed to Marijuana' Drug Investigations Fruitless in Chilton

He said state law enforcement assistance is needed in Chilton, and communities like it, to find the narcotics. Problem Possible. The community does not now have a serious drug abuse problem but such a problem is possible "if you don't stay on top of it," Albeydyl said. Narcotics programs are being conducted in the city to inform residents about drug abuse. Appleton police detectives and Albeydyl have conducted programs at the high school, for Kiwanis and Rotarians in the city. A psychiatrist from Winnebago State Hospital, Oshkosh, addressed a 4-H Junior Leaders panel at a discussion about drug abuse in February. Adults are becoming increasingly interested in narcotics education says Albeydyl. Schools at Chilton have held educational programs emphasizing drug abuse information in an attempt to stop a problem from developing. A University of Wisconsin extension service program is being conducted for adults at the Calumet Memorial Hospital. The 30-hour course is a series of group telephone discussions using a statewide telephone hook-up. Experts in law enforcement, and professors, doctors and psychiatrists outline drug problems and discuss action in the program. "We definitely need this," said Albeydyl, appraising the narcotics education programs. James Skarda, Chilton High School guidance counselor, said "I have never run into a single thing," involving drug abuse. He said, "If it exists, I don't know where it would be."

Talks in Schools. Skarda has talked with students about narcotics abuse in the school system but has not uncovered evidence of drug traffic in the school. Calumet County does not have a serious narcotics problem, according to Sheriff C. J. Kosmosky. "Right now I don't know of any" narcotics abuse, he said. The sheriff has not made any arrests for drug abuse since taking office in January. He also said he has not received any complaints of drug usage. At Hilbert, Ernest Pitzen, village marshal said, "I don't think we have any (drug abuse) here at all. He said a Green Bay policeman recently addressed a teen-parent conference at a program sponsored by St. Mary Church. Pitzen said last year there

Construction of Water Plant Is Moving Ahead

Excavation Work for $1.3 Million Addition Will Start This Week

Construction of a new $1.3 million addition to the Appleton municipal water treatment plant is expected to shift into high gear this week.

Most of the site preparation work was completed over the winter months, according to Gary Stegeman, water department superintendent.

Stegeman said the general contractor, Fluor Brothers Construction, Oshkosh, will be remodeling the existing building, along with erecting a major addition.

Permit Obtained
Representatives of Fluor Brothers obtained a permit from the director of inspections' office Monday calling for $1,351,245 in new construction and remodeling.

The plant addition, which ties in with the city's multi-million dollar water expansion program, will be of concrete and brick construction, having about 55,000 square feet.

Site of the major construction project is 337 W. Water Street in the area known as Appleton's "industrial flats."

Stegeman said the major excavation work is expected to begin this week.

Pipeline Progresses
He reported good progress on another phase of the expansion — the new pipeline which will extend from Lake Winnebago north to the water plant.

The new water line already extends from State 114 north to Hoover Street.

Stegeman said the next step will be to lay the pipeline from State 114 south to the lake intake station now under construction.

public high school prepared the brochures as part of a typing practice program with approval of Supt. of Schools Leo Bronkalla. With the brochure available in every home, police are hopeful that parents will be more watchful of their children and young people may learn the dangers of experimentation with drugs.

Investigation Completed Cause of Chilton Fire Apparently Discovered

CHILTON — Investigation Monday by a state fire marshal has apparently disclosed the cause of the Friday morning house fire which killed the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Faust, but local authorities Tuesday made only limited comment.

Calumet County Coroner Leroy Hughes acknowledged that the cause of the fire had been determined after questioning the Faustus' four-year-old son, and that there had been no explosion or malfunction of the stove or heater. The fire originated in the kitchen.

However, by mutual agreement of the officials involved, any further comment was to come from the fire marshal, Henry Fiege of Wausau, Hughes said.

Talks to Resume in 10-Month Contractor, Teamster Dispute fringe benefits, one of the key points in a new contract will be retroactivity.

Carpenters and masons struck the association last summer and set back construction projects in all Valley cities.

Big construction projects now under way or scheduled to be started soon include the $7 million Gimbels Department Store in downtown Appleton; an addition to the city's East Parking Ramp; and the multi-million dollar water plant and Lake Michigan pipeline.

There has been no strike talk by the unions to date, and it would appear negotiations on both sides of the bargaining table are optimistic at this point.

Teamsters Local 563 of Appleton has been on strike against another group — the Valley Contractor Material Suppliers Association — since July 29, 1968. So have the members of Local 139 of the Operating Engineers.

In some instances when the suppliers association members have furnished ready mix concrete and other materials for members of the Fox Valley Contractors Association, labor disputes erupted as pickets descended on jobsites.

There was a meeting of the suppliers association representatives and bargainners for the Operating Engineers two weeks ago and another is to be arranged soon by Donald Lee, Madison, of the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission. However, Teamsters and association representatives have not met since last November.

Officer Badly Clawed

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — A young man being booked on suspicion of possessing dangerous drugs clawed Police Sgt. Thomas Wall so badly the officer lost sight in his left eye, doctors at Desert Hospital said today. Michael Henderson, 22, Lakewood, Calif., was rebooked on suspicion of mayhem after this arrest last Friday night.

Appleton police detectives have explained drug usage at meetings of civic organizations in Brillion. Dean Wallace, Brillion High School guidance counselor said, "As far as I know we have no reported cases," of drug abuse in the school system. He said the school has no definite program on narcotics, but said that many teens are curious about drugs.

Managerial Debuts of King And Williams Are Ruined

Braves, LA And Yankees Win Openers

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Professional baseball's second century got under way Monday and for Ted Williams and Clyde King, two of the sport's new managers, the next 100 years can only get better.

Williams' Washington Senators were bombed 8-4 by the New York Yankees in the presidential opener in Washington. King's debut was two outs from becoming a success when the Atlanta Braves pushed across two runs in the bottom of the ninth and nipped the San Francisco Giants 5-4.

The Cincinnati Reds, descendants of the first pro baseball team back in 1869, dropped their traditional home opener 3-2 to Los Angeles.

Others Open Today

The remaining 18 teams, including expansionists Montreal and San Diego in the National League and Kansas City and Seattle in the American, swing into action today.

The NL schedule finds Philadelphia at Chicago and Montreal at New York in the afternoon with Pittsburgh at St. Louis, Houston at San Diego and San Francisco at Atlanta under the lights.

In the AL, it's Cleveland at Detroit, Boston at Baltimore and Minnesota at Kansas City during the day, followed by Chicago at Oakland and Seattle at California at night.

The Senators got off fast when it didn't count before 45,113, largest opening day crowd ever in the nation's capital. Hank Allen snared the first ball thrown out by President Richard M. Nixon and two subsequent tosses went to Washington coach Joe Camacho and Allen again.

Then the game began and the Senators soon were back in the familiar surroundings of last

The red, white and blue buttons will be sold by Optimists and some members of the Singout group.

The Foxes opening-day booster ticket campaign has been successful to date, and the high school sales group is finishing the door-to-door campaign. Orders for season tickets and book tickets are being taken at the Foxes' business office, Goodland Field.

Lawrence '9' Loses, 11-3, to Stevens Point

Gene Jack Slams 2-Run Homer in Pointer Victory

Making the most of six hits, the Stevens Point baseball team scored a 11-3 victory over Lawrence University in a game played at the Pointer's field Monday.

The win was the first of the season for Stevens Point after a pair of losses to the University of Minnesota. For Lawrence it was the eighth straight setback, including seven defeats on a spring trip to Tennessee.

Stevens Point jumped out in front with six runs in the first two innings off Lawrence starter Bob Townsend and was never headed. Lawrence scored all its runs in the fifth.

Townsend worked the first four innings for the Vikes and was charged with the loss. John Tittle hurled the last four frames. Townsend gave up eight runs, five hits, walked four and struck out one. Tittle had two strikeouts, and walked five while allowing three runs on one hit.

Peterson Triples

Dave Peterson, of Waupaca, had a bases loaded triple for the Pointers in the first inning and had four runs batted in during the game. Gene Jack, former Xavier High School standout, had a 2-run homer for the winners in the fifth inning. Former Neenah athletic star Tom Walkner had two hits in three trips for Stevens Point.

Ron Merza had a 2-run single for the Vikes and Dave Spear drove in the other run with a single. Merza had a pair of hits in four trips and Rob Thomas of the Vikes walked five consecutive times in the game.

Lawrence stranded 12 runners in the contest. The Pointers used five different hurlers with Roland Baier getting credit for the victory.

Patriots Eye Seattle Move, Says Paper

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Patriots of the American Football League "are on the threshold of moving to Seattle," the Boston Herald Traveler said today in a copyrighted story.

"Their departure from Boston appears so imminent it could happen within a few days," the newspaper said.

Because the Patriots will be unable to use Fenway Park, the Red Sox' home field, until late October, and because prospects for a new stadium are dim, "the Patriots are under heavy pressure from pro football leaders to move immediately," the Herald Traveler said.

Wyatt Signed By Oakland

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Athletics announced Monday the signing of right-handed pitcher John Wyatt, who earlier this spring was released by the Detroit Tigers.

Wyatt, who will join the club in time for today's opening game, appeared in 37 games for the Tigers last year, winning two, losing four and posting a 2.76 earned-run average.

Bucks Draft Rutgers' Bob Greacen (6-7); Florida's Neal Walk Goes to Phoenix

Marquette's Thompson Is Still Available

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Everybody knew whom the Milwaukee Bucks were going to draft first Monday. But the team's second round pick was a complete surprise.

Now the question is whom will the Bucks take in the third round, which will be held May 7 in New York.

In a telephone draft, Milwau-

Bob Greacen

kee picked the giant All-American from UCLA, Lew Alcindor, as the first player chosen. The Bucks had signed Alcindor to a reported $1.4 million contract last week.

The team's second choice was Bob Greacen, a 6-foot-7, 215-pound forward from Rutgers.

"Has Great Range"

"He loves the game, has great range, is a good runner and jumper and can go to the basket," Larry Costello, Bucks coach, said of Greacen. "We've lacked some quickness, and he can supply us with it."

With Alcindor already in the fold and Greacen acknowledging he "prefers the NBA," the attention of Milwaukee fans is turning to the third round choice.

Conditioning Check

Packer Vets, Rookies

Told to Report to Green Bay April 18

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Phil Bengtson is missing no bets.

Determined to return the Packers to the winner's circle, he will make pro football history next week.

The Pack's head coach and general manager has ordered veterans to report April 18 for an unprecedented spring check "to determine their physical condition and progress."

All of the Packers based in Green Bay have been taking part in a systematic conditioning program, headed up by new assistant coach Zeke Bratkowski, since mid-winter. All of the others also have been briefed by mail and requested to follow suit.

Next week's mass check will reveal, what has been achieved to date, publicity director Chuck Lane said.

Check Most Players

"Most of the veterans and most rookies will be here. After they have been checked on Saturday, April 19, they will do some running before leaving. The running system also will be explained to them and what it's for. The program is being conducted, I might add, in conjunction with a professional physiologist."

Commenting on the project, Bengtson said, "We've always had an off-season conditioning program, but this year we've organized it more.

"It is a combination of running and weightlifting exercises. The weightlifting exercises have a little different approach than just to develop strength, however."

"The combination is one of the best ways to develop good overall physical condition. It's an old theory, but it's a good one. The idea is that an extensive long distance running program is the best way to get ready for a football season. It's primarily to improve endurance, but it also is a good overall conditioner. I think it will help our whole squad."

Agrees With Dowler

Veteran Boyd Dowler, for one, finds the off-season regimen "a great thing."

"It should cut out the grief of training camp," Dowler, who has been running up to three miles a day since mid-February, said Monday. "I've been playing basketball with the Packer basketball team and now I can run up and down the floor without breathing hard. In fact, we played a game over the weekend and I felt I could have played the whole game without stopping."

Jo Jo White Claimed by The Celtics

NEW YORK (AP) — The flip side of the coin for the Phoenix Suns turned out to be Neal Walk of Florida.

The surprise in a delayed Easter basket for the Boston Celtics turned out to be Jo Jo White of Kansas.

That's the way it went Monday as the National Basketball Association ran through the first two rounds of its draft of college seniors in fast-break style.

It took the 14 clubs just 22 minutes to select 29 players in the telephone draft session in the offices of Commissioner J. Walter Kennedy. The draft will be completed in New York May 7.

Phoenix, which lost a coin toss to Milwaukee for the right to pick first, chose the 6-foot-10 Walk just moments after Milwaukee had selected Lew Alcindor.

The drafting of Alcindor by Milwaukee—the last-place finisher in the Eastern Division as Phoenix was in the Western—was a mere formality because the Bucks had signed the 7-1½ UCLA All-American last week for a reported $1.4 million package.

The Celtics, who picked ninth in the first round, had expected White to be gone by the time their turn came. But he wasn't and so the 6-3 Olympian became a Celtic.

Joining Alcindor and Walk, who was also the No. 2 pick in the rival American Basketball Association, were Lucious Allen, by Seattle; Terry Driscoll of Boston College, by Detroit, and

Mustang Track Team 'Green'

LITTLE CHUTE — With no home facilities to work on, the Mustangs' head coach on the shelf with an arm injury, and only two letter winners on the squad, the Little Chute High School track team is off to a rocky start in its first campaign.

Thirty-four boys are currently on the Mustangs' roster, but the figure could drop by the time Little Chute starts the season.

The Mustangs will get an idea of what they can do in a practice meet against the Kimberly jayvees at Kimberly April 15. Another dual meet against a yet-unnamed foe is set for April 17 at Kaukauna.

Bill Hoks, a former DePere athlete and Stout State graduate, is the squad's head coach. However, Hoks suffered a chip-ped elbow in a recent basketball game, and assistants Bill Fitzpatrick (the athletic director) and Boyd Kohn have taken over some of the duties.

"We're very, very green," Fitzpatrick said Monday. "With an enrollment of 190 students, we can't expect to do much, but the thing we're fighting is not having our own track."

No Measured Track

"We have no measured track to determine our times," he went on, "so we don't really know what we can do yet. But the meet against Kimberly will give us a start."

A track and football field are in the general plans for Little Chute High School, Fitzpatrick said, but just when the two will be constructed has not yet been determined.

The lone lettermen on the squad are seniors Dick Hurst and Roger VanDeHey, who earned their monograms last year in the pole vault and 440, respectively, at St. John.

Hurst will return in his specialty and also compete in the 220 and possibly the 880 relay. VanDeHey will likely abandon the individual 440 to compete in the shorter dashes (100, 220), the long jump, and the mile relay.

Did you know that auto racing now attracts more than 40 million paid admissions in America each year, and among all sports now has climbed into 2nd place in total paid attendance, second only to horse racing, which has the advantage of pari-mutuel betting. . . . Auto racing is one of the fastest growing American sports.

Now that Vince Lombardi has taken over as head coach of the Washington Redskins, here's a fact that shows how long it's been since the Redskins were able to win the championship of the National Football League. . . . The Redskins haven't won the NFL title since Franklin Roosevelt was President of the U.S. . . . Last time the Skins won the league championship was 1942.

Here's quite an oddity from baseball. . . . The man who holds the record for scoring the most runs in one major league game — Guy Hecker — was, of all things, a pitcher. . . . You'd think the man who held the record for scoring the most runs in one game would have been an infielder, outfielder or catcher, but Pitcher Guy Hecker set the all-time record when he scored 7 times in one game in 1886 and nobody has ever topped that.

JIM MURRAY Masters Test As White as Ku Klux Klan

OK, rest easy, Jefferson Davis! Put down the gun, John Wilkes Booth. Let's hear a chorus of Dee-eye-ex-eye-ee! Run up the Stars and Bars. You won't have to blindfold that Confederate general's statue after all. Downtown Tobacco Road is still safe from the 20th century.

The Masters golf tournament is as white as the Ku Klux Klan. Everybody in it can ride in the front of the bus.

There's nothing the Supreme Court can do about it. Integration fell about 18 strokes or 20 Masters points short. Integration missed the cut.

The one break Charlie Sifford couldn't read and compensate for was the one which made him, like an eighth generation American, if only a third-generation free man "Only in America," as the fellow says. Twenty golf champions had a clear shot at redressing a longtime wrong but they drove it in the deep rough. They double-bogeyed a chance to do something for golf, for themselves, for their country.

Charlie Sifford should have been Chinese, I guess, instead of Carolinian. An accident of birth keeps his clubs in the trunk of the car this week. The circumstances are well known, but I will recount them briefly here, to the accompaniment of the Battle Hymn of the Republic and a recitation of the Gettysburg Address.

'Members Only'

Charlie Sifford is a golfer, an American, a gentleman. He is not, however, a Caucasian. Until 1961, this seriously interfered with his life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness, to say nothing of his occupation — because golf was a "Members Only" club till then. They didn't publish the 14th Amendment in Golf Digest. It wasn't covered under the "free drop" rule.

Charlie was almost 40 years old before he got to play with the big boys. You can make book Arnold Palmer couldn't have overcome a handicap like that. You would have thought the other guys would give him two-a-side at first, just to be fair.

Charlie didn't need them. Even though some tournaments still had the Bedsheet on — retreating behind the "invitation only" subterfuge, Charlie had become dangerous competition. He won two important tournaments, the Hartford and Los Angeles. If you think that's easy, you don't know golf. If you think that's even possible (with Charlie's late start), you're an optimist.

Now, the Masters is an unusual tournament. It was Bobby Jones' dream — and a man is entitled to do in his dreams what he wishes. What Bobby wished was to make it a sort of glorious annual reunion for certified legends of the game — never mind that some of them became fossilized.

A Bonus Event

The country took to the tournament. So did the world. Golf journalists from two continents wrote tone poems about the course. It became a "bonus" event. Winning it was like getting a seat on the Stock Exchange.

Bobby had to change it — or it would've become known as the "Fossils" instead of the "Masters." He kept six positions for non-legends, touring pros who never made any of the rich-kid amateur teams, guys who might leave their spoons in their coffee while they drank.

The Masters didn't BAR black people. Frankly, it wasn't thought necessary. In fact, it did let them carry the bags.

Now, one way you can get in the Masters is by winning the championship of Formosa or making a good showing at Kuala Lumpur. Plus, you can be INVITED by a vote of former champions.

Former champions have often voted out of sentiment. Cronies who had fallen on evil days — to say nothing of in sand traps and lateral water hazards — got in on this kind of pass.

He's Unique

As a two-time tour winner, a guy who had been a victim of 20 years of injustice, and a surrogate for his people who have been victims of 200 years of same, it occurred to me, a sense of shame might have directed that vote to Charlie Sifford this year. Charlie is not ANY black man, and this would not be tokenism, he is a tour winner under circumstances as adverse as for any athlete who ever lived. Like a Bulgarian immigrant getting in a spelling bee.

Art Wall Jr. — and let's hear it for him! — voted for Charlie Sifford. As far as I know, that gave Charlie a total of one. The other guys voted for Bob Murphy.

Now, I'm all for the Irish. But we've been in the country clubs for a long time now. Not as long as West Virginians, to be sure, but long enough.

What's more Bob Murphy was already safely in the Masters! He was second on a point list that would admit all the way through six! It was like sending money to Rockefeller or rice to China.

How's That Again?

The Masters invites select foreigners, as noted. The official position of the Masters is that they "allow ourselves a bit more latitude with foreign players because, in most cases, they do not have the opportunity to prove themselves against USA players."

How's that again, fellows? Who was more "foreign" than Charlie Sifford till he was over 40? He could play if he was raised on a camel or a fjord or a castle in Spain. In a tobacco patch in Carolina, no. But, pshaw! He had an unnatural advantage: He was raised in America.

Charlie had one last chance down here at Greensboro. At the age of 45, all he had to do was beat out this field of 141 young studs. Charlie threw a 74 at the course in the opening round. On this easy track it might as well be 94.

Charlie signed his scorecard, then turned and said to this reporter bitterly "Now they can keep their tournament down there lily-white."

Wait a minute, Charlie! You forgot the caddies.

Powers 576 Set

Larry Turkow toppled a 593 series to take top honors in the Comic Couples League at Hahn's Lanes Saturday night.

Mary Mann's 515 total was the only other high score of note. Hoopes won the first place championship by three games over Caspers and four games over Puffles.

Bill Greil's 576 featured keeling in the TV Sparemakers, Couples League at Sabre Lanes, Jim Wolter crashed a 232-570 combination, and Jim Viotto smacked 562. Shirley Viotto's 506 trio led the distaff scoring, while Marcella Schommer and Carole Cowan rapped 203 and 191 games, respectively.

The Nutty Couples League at Hahn's Lanes saw Stan Haugen lead the way, with a 574. Jim Landes spun a league-high 238 game, and Vivian Huisman hit 517.

League champions were the Chestnuts, comprised of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Ankerson and Mr. and Mrs. Stan Haugen.

Ed Sheets powered a 574 set to pace the Cocktail Couples League at Sabre Lanes. Runerup laurels went to Don Klemp with 563, and Jack Stingle and Ken Rohloff each rolled 555. Cleone Rohloff topped the ladies with 504, and Marge Kosloske fashioned a 208 singleton.

Tom Hibbard socked a 568 for the top count in the Forest Green Couples league at 41 Bowl. Vern Van Dehy was close back with 567, and "Corky" Behrent bossed ladies scores with 509.

A 241 line and a 560 three-some gave Dick Vandehey the spotlight in the Football Couples League at 41 Bowl.

Badgers Dealt 12-1 Setback By Sun Devils

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — The University of Wisconsin baseball squad, opening its season with the threat of becoming punch-drunk, was knocked through the ropes again Monday by the powerful Sun Devils of Arizona State.

Having beaten the Badgers in Wisconsin's first three games of the campaign, Arizona State made it four in a row with a 12-1 decision Monday.

The Sun Devils, meeting the Badgers again tonight at Phoenix, have a combined scoring advantage of 44-3 over Wisconsin in their four games.

Wisconsin has had to practice indoors for the most part. Arizona State, with sunlight to help, has already played 33 games and has a 27-6 record.

The victors rapped out 16 hits Monday with three players driving home two runs each. Craig Swan hampered Wisconsin's chances by pitching seven scoreless innings, and raised his season record to 5-0.

Joe Miller took over pitching duties in the eighth, and was charged with Wisconsin's lone run.

Horton, Bower Retire From Pro Hockey

TORONTO (AP) — Two veteran Toronto Maple Leafs, defenseman Tim Horton and goaltender John Bower, have announced their retirement from the National Hockey League club, it was disclosed Monday.

The retirements came shortly after manager-coach Punch Imlach was fired minutes after the Leafs were eliminated Sunday from the NHL's East Division semifinals by the Boston Bruins in four consecutive games.

Horton, 39, and Bower, 44, both were close associates of Imlach and two of his staunchest supporters through his controversial career.

Bucks Draft Rutgers' Bob Greacen (6-7); Florida's Neal Walk Goes to Phoenix

Marquette's Thompson Is Still Available

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Everybody knew whom the Milwaukee Bucks were going to draft first Monday. But the team's second round pick was a complete surprise.

Now the question is whom will the Bucks take in the third round, which will be held May 7 in New York.

Bob Greacen

kee picked the giant All-American from UCLA, Lew Alcindor, as the first player chosen. The Bucks had signed Alcindor to a reported $1.4 million contract last week.

The team's second choice was Bob Greacen, a 6-foot-7, 215-pound forward from Rutgers' "Has Great Range."

"He loves the game, has great range, is a good runner and jumper and can go to the basket," Larry Costello, Bucks coach, said of Greacen. "We've lacked some quickness, and he can supply us with it."

With Alcindor already in the fold and Greacen acknowledging he "prefers the NBA," the attention of Milwaukee fans is turning to the third round choice.

Conditioning Check Packer Vets, Rookies Told to Report to Green Bay April 18

Post-Crescent News Service GREEN BAY — Phil Bengtson is missing no bets.

Determined to return the Packers to the winner's circle, he will make pro football history next week.

The Pack's head coach and general manager has ordered veterans to report April 18 for an unprecedented spring check "to determine their physical condition and progress."

All of the Packers based in Green Bay have been taking part in a systematic conditioning program, headed up by new assistant coach Zeke Bratkowski, since mid-winter. All of the others also have been briefed by mail and requested to follow suit.

Next week's mass check will reveal what has been achieved to date, publicity director Chuck Lane said.

Check Most Players

"Most of the veterans and most rookies will be here. After they have been checked on Saturday, April 19, they will do some running before leaving. The running system also will be explained to them and what it's for. The program is being conducted, I might add, in conjunction with a professional physiologist."

Commenting on the project, Bengtson said, "We've always had an off-season conditioning program, but this year we've organized it more.

"It is a combination of running and weightlifting exercises. The weightlifting exercises have a little different approach than just to develop strength, however."

"The combination is one of the best ways to develop good overall physical condition. It's an old theory, but it's a good one. The idea is that an extensive long distance running program is the best way to get ready for a football season. It's primarily to improve endurance, but it also is a good overall conditioner. I think it will help our whole squad."

Agrees With Dowler

Veteran Boyd Dowler, for one, finds the off-season regimen "a great thing."

"It should cut out the grief of training camp," Dowler, who has been running up to three miles a day since mid-February, said Monday. "I've been playing basketball with the Packer basketball team and now I can run up and down the floor without breathing hard. In fact, we played a game over the weekend and I felt I could have played the whole game without stopping."

Jo Jo White Claimed by The Celtics

NEW YORK (AP) — The flip side of the coin for the Phoenix Suns turned out to be Neal Walk of Florida.

The surprise in a delayed Easter basket for the Boston Celtics turned out to be Jo Jo White of Kansas.

That's the way it went Monday as the National Basketball Association ran through the first two rounds of its draft of college seniors in fast-break style.

It took the 14 clubs just 22 minutes to select 29 players in the telephone draft session in the offices of Commissioner J. Walter Kennedy. The draft will be completed in New York May 7.

Phoenix, which lost a coin toss to Milwaukee for the right to pick first, chose the 6-foot-10 Walk just moments after Milwaukee had selected Lew Alcindor.

The drafting of Alcindor by Milwaukee—the last-place finisher in the Eastern Division as Phoenix was in the Western—was a mere formality because the Bucks had signed the 7-1½ UCLA All-American last week for a reported $1.4 million package.

The Celtics, who picked ninth in the first round, had expected White to be gone by the time their turn came. But he wasn't and so the 6-3 Olympian became a Celtic.

Joining Alcindor and Walk, who was also the No. 2 pick in the rival American Basketball Association, were Lucious Allen, by Seattle; Terry Driscoll of Boston College, by Detroit, and LITTLE CHUTE — With no home facilities to work on, the team's head coach on the shelf with an arm injury, and only two letter winners on the squad, the Little Chute High School and Boyd Kohn have taken over track team is off to a rocky start in its first campaign.

Thirty-four boys are currently on the Mustangs' roster, but the figure could drop by the time Little Chute starts the season.

The Mustangs will get an idea of what they can do in a practice meet against the Kimberly Jayvees at Kimberly April 15. Another dual meet against a yet-unnamed foe is set for April 17 at Kaukauna.

Bill Hoks, a former DePere athlete and Stout State graduate, is the squad's head coach. However, Hoks suffered a chip-ped elbow in a recent basketball game, and assistants Bill Fitzpatrick (the athletic director) and Boyd Kohn have taken over some of the duties.

"We're very, very green," Fitzpatrick said Monday. "With an enrollment of 190 students, we can't expect to do much, but the thing we're fighting is not having our own track."

No Measured Track "We have no measured track to determine our times," he went on, "so we don't really know what we can do yet. But the meet against Kimberly will give us a start."

Managerial Debuts of King And Williams Are Ruined

Braves, LA And Yankees Win Openers

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON Associated Press Sports Writer Professional baseball's second century got under way Monday and for Ted Williams and Clyde King, two of the sport's new managers, the next 100 years can only get better.

Williams' Washington Senators were bombed 8-4 by the New York Yankees in the presidential opener in Washington. King's debut was two outs from becoming a success when the Atlanta Braves pushed across two runs in the bottom of the ninth and nipped the San Francisco Giants 5-4.

The Cincinnati Reds, descendants of the first pro baseball team back in 1869, dropped their traditional home opener 3-2 to Los Angeles.

Others Open Today

The remaining 18 teams, including expansionists Montreal and San Diego in the National League and Kansas City and Seattle in the American, swing into action today.

The NL schedule finds Philadelphia at Chicago and Montreal at New York in the afternoon with Pittsburgh at St. Louis, Houston at San Diego and San Francisco at Atlanta under the lights.

In the AL, it's Cleveland at Detroit, Boston at Baltimore and Minnesota at Kansas City during the day, followed by Chicago at Oakland and Seattle at California at night.

The Senators got off fast when it didn't count before 45,113, largest opening day crowd ever in the nation's capital. Hank Allen snared the first ball thrown out by President Richard M. Nixon and two subsequent tosses went to Washington coach Joe Camacho and Allen again.

Then the game began and the Senators soon were back in the familiar surroundings of last

SPORT FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By John Behnke

Did you know that auto racing now attracts more than 40 million paid admissions in America each year, and among all sports now has climbed into 2nd place in total paid attendance, second only to horse racing, which has the advantage of pari-mutuel betting. Auto racing is one of the fastest growing American sports.

Now that Vince Lombardi has taken over as head coach of the Washington Redskins, here's a fact that shows how long it's been since the Redskins were able to win the championship of the National Football League. The Redskins haven't won the NFL title since Franklin Roosevelt was President of the U.S. Last time the Redskins won the league championship was 1942.

Here's quite an oddity from baseball. The man who holds the record for scoring the most runs in one major league game — Guy Hecker — was, of all things, a pitcher. You'd think the man who held the record for scoring the most runs in one game would have been an infielder, outfielder or catcher, but Pitcher Guy Hecker set the all-time record when he scored 7 times in one game in 1886 and nobody has ever topped that.

I bet you didn't know New colors are here in Esquire socks 3 lengths plus guaranteed to stay up.

Masters Test As White as Ku Klux Klan

OK, rest easy, Jefferson Davis! Put down the gun, John Wilkes Booth. Let's hear a chorus of Dee-eye-ex eye-ee! Run up the Stars and Bars. You won't have to blindfold that Confederate general's statue after all. Downtown Tobacco Road is still safe from the 20th century.

The Masters golf tournament is as white as the Ku Klux Klan. Everybody in it can ride in the front of the bus.

There's nothing the Supreme Court can do about it. Integration fell about 18 strokes or 20 Masters points short. Integration missed the cut.

The one break Charlie Sifford couldn't read and compensate for was the one which made him, like an eighth generation American, if only a third-generation free man. Only in America, as the fellow says. Twenty golf champions had a clear shot at redressing a longtime wrong but they drove it in the deep rough. They double-bogeyed a chance to do something for golf for themselves, for their country.

Charlie Sifford should have been Chinese, I guess, instead of Carolinian. An accident of birth keeps his clubs in the trunk of the car this week.

The circumstances are well known, but I will recount them briefly here, to the accompaniment of the Battle Hymn of the Republic and a recitation of the Gettysburg Address.

'Members Only'

Charlie Sifford is a golfer, an American, a gentleman. He is not, however, a Caucasian. Until 1961, this seriously interfered with his life, liberty and pursuit of happiness, to say nothing of his occupation — because golf was a "Members Only" club till then. They didn't publish the 14th Amendment in Golf Digest. It wasn't covered under the "free drop" rule.

Charlie was almost 40 years old before he got to play with the big boys. You can make book Arnold Palmer couldn't have overcome a handicap like that. You would have thought the other guys would give him two-a-side at first, just to be fair.

Charlie didn't need them. Even though some tournaments still had the Bedsheet on — retreating behind the "invitational only" subterfuge, Charlie had become dangerous competition. He won two important tournaments, the Hartford and Los Angeles. If you think that's easy, you don't know golf. If you think that's even possible (with Charlie's late start), you're an optimist.

Now, the Masters is an unusual tournament. It was Bobby Jones' dream — and a man is entitled to do in his dreams what he wishes. What Bobby wished was to make it a sort of glorious annual reunion for certified legends of the game — never mind that some of them became fossilized.

A Bonus Event

The country took to the tournament. So did the world. Golf journalists from two continents wrote tone poems about the course. It became a "bonus" event. Winning it was like getting a seat on the Stock Exchange.

Bobby had to change it — or it would've become known as the "Fossils" instead of the "Masters." He kept six positions for non-legends, touring pros who never made any of the rich-kid amateur teams, guys who might leave their spoons in their coffee while they drank.

The Masters didn't BAR black people. Frankly, it wasn't thought necessary. In fact, it did let them carry the bags.

Now, one way you can get in the Masters is by winning the championship of Formosa or making a good showing at Kuala Lumpur. Plus, you can be INVITED by a vote of former champions.

Former champions have often voted out of sentiment. Cronies who had fallen on evil days — to say nothing of in sand traps and lateral water hazards — got in on this kind of pass.

He's Unique

As a two-time tour winner, a guy who had been a victim of 20 years of injustice, and a surrogate for his people who have been victims of 200 years of same it occurred to me, a sense of shame might have directed that vote to Charlie Sifford this year. Charlie is not ANY black man, and this would not be tokenism, he is a tour winner under circumstances as adverse as for any athlete who ever lived. Like a Bulgarian immigrant getting in a spelling bee.

Art Wall Jr. — and let's hear it for him! — voted for Charlie Sifford. As far as I know, that gave Charlie a total of one. The other guys voted for Bob Murphy.

Now, I'm all for the Irish. But we've been in the country clubs for a long time now. Not as long as West Virginians, to be sure, but long enough.

What's more Bob Murphy was already safely in the Masters! He was second on a point list that would admit all the way through six! It was like sending money to Rockefeller or rice to China.

How's That Again?

The Masters invites select foreigners, as noted. The official position of the Masters is that they "allow ourselves a bit more latitude with foreign players because, in most cases, they do not have the opportunity to prove themselves against USA players."

How's that again, fellows? Who was more "foreign" than Charlie Sifford till he was over 40? He could play if he was raised on a camel or a fjord or a castle in Spain. In a tobacco patch in Carolina no. But pshaw! He had an unnatural advantage. He was raised in America.

Charlie had one last chance down here at Greensboro. At the age of 45, all he had to do was beat out this field of 141 young studs. Charlie threw a 74 at the course in the opening round. On this easy track it might as well be 94.

Charlie signed his scorecard, then turned and said to this reporter bitterly. Now they can keep their tournament down there hilly-white.

Wait a minute, Charlie! You forgot the caddies.

Lee Trevino Ranks as One of Solid Threats For Title in 'Masters'

By BOB GREEN
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Lee Trevino, the two-year-old but now one of the world's best shot-makers, will be among the elite field of 83 of the world's best shot-makers who tee off in Thursday's first round over the lushly green, rolling acres of the 6,960-yard, par 72 Augusta National Course. Trevino said "I've only had 27 holes of practice." Trevino said "But I like this course."

The ex-Marine and one-time $35-a-week assistant pro bolted in the front rank of golf's elite when he won the U.S. Open at Rochester, N.Y. last year with his peculiar tight, flat swing, a swing he recognizes breaks the teaching rules but one he calls "just right for a little fat guy."

Trevino, who missed the National Airlines Tournament in Miami two weeks ago because of jammed left thumb, said his injury is "okay now. No trouble," and he wiggled the thumb to demonstrate.

But some of the other top choices to succeed star-crossed Bob Goaly, as the 33rd Masters' champ are less than well. Miller Barber, the pick of Trevino and South Africa's Gary Player as the man most likely to succeed, also has a jammed thumb but is playing.

Now Struggling
Arnold Palmer, a four-time native, holds all the school scoring records at Marquette, still is bothered by an ailing back, even though he shot a fantastic 63 in a practice round late last week. Flashy Doug Sanders, a two-time Open champion, still is suffering from allergies.

Among the healthy leading contenders are Player, the reigning British Open champion, Gene Littler, winner of Sunday's playoff for the Greater Greensboro title and the leading money winner this year, and always dangerous Jack Nicklaus. And, too, there's Goaly, who hasn't done much of anything since he won last year's Masters on a slip of the pen. And the gentle, gentlemanly Roberto de Vicenzo, who signed away a chance for a tie when he autographed an incorrect scorecard.

Bucks Draft Bob Greacen

George Thompson of Marquette University.

Before Monday's draft, Tom Nissalke, assistant coach, said the Bucks would like to have Thompson, but they didn't know if he would last until the third round.

"He's a good one," Costello said Monday. "But we'll have to see if he's available when we pick Phoenix has the first choice and they could take him."

Thompson, a New York native, holds all the school scoring records at Marquette, still is bothered by an ailing back, even though he shot a fantastic 63 in a practice round late last week. Flashy Doug Sanders, a two-time Open champion, still is suffering from allergies.

Greacen was as surprised as the fans that he was named in the second round.

"I really wasn't expecting to be picked so high in the draft," he said in a telephone conversation. "It sounds, though, like a great opportunity to play on the same team with Alcindor."

"We had him high, pretty high, on our draft list," Costello said. "I think he's going to be a sleeper."

Gain Western Finals Hawks Scramble Past San Diego, 108-106

By RON ROACH
SAN DIEGO (AP)—The Atlanta Hawks, outshot and outrebounced by the young San Diego Rockets, were not outscrambled.

Their 108-106 victory Monday night put the Hawks into the National Basketball Association's Western Division playoff finals with the Los Angeles Lakers.

Atlanta, beating San Diego 42 in their series, meets the Lakers in the first game of the best-of-7 series Wednesday night at Los Angeles.

In the Eastern Division finals, Boston leads the New York 1-0. The Celtics entertain the Knicks Wednesday night.

No games are scheduled for night.

Atlanta trailed by 19 points in the third quarter but the Hawks began picking up loose balls, and intercepting passes. They went ahead by eight points, 98-90, with 4:57 to play on the shooting of Lou Hudson. Bill Bridges and Walt Hazzard.

Hayes Misses Dunk
"We simply turned the ball over too many times and lost momentum," said Rocket coach Jack McMahon. "When Elvin Hayes missed that dunk shot in the third period, I think that's when the momentum changed."

Hayes, who scored 26 points, went up to stuff the ball with both hands but it hit the back of the rim and bounced off.

"We shot real well but didn't get enough shots up," said McMahon, whose team, led by Don Kojis, hit a sizzling 62 per cent from the floor in the first half of play.

Kojis hit 11 of 15 in the first half scoring 23 points but was held to three points after interception and fouled out with 1:52 left to play.

The Rockets had more field goals, 44-41, and more rebounds, 50-47, but converted only 18 of 33 free throw attempts while the Hawks made 26 of 45.

No Looking Ahead
Atlanta coach Richie Guerin said the Hawks could not afford to look beyond the Rockets to the Lakers.

"We looked ahead to the Lakers last year and got knocked off by San Francisco," he said. "This was a tough series. San Diego has nothing to be ashamed of, the Rockets played a fine game."

Hudson led all scorers with 27 points, while Bridges added 24 for the Hawks.

The Rockets played without forward John Block, who had averaged 12 points in the series before breaking his wrist in Sunday's loss in Atlanta.

"I don't want to make excuses, but we did miss Block," McMahon said.

The fourth place finish by the Rockets this year was a far cry from their first season in the NBA. San Diego won only 15 of their 82 efforts in the 1967-68 season for last place in the West.

place—but this time last was only sixth in the AL's Eastern Division as the two circuits began divisional play.

New Running Game
The Yankees unveiled their new running game in the second inning as Roy White stole two bases and Bill Robinson one and Tom Tresh and Jake Gibbs delivered them with singles. A touch of the old Yankee power was evident in the third when Jerry Kenney and Bobby Murcer walloped consecutive home runs.

Four unearned runs in the fourth wrapped it up as Mel Stottlemyre staggered to a 14 hit complete game, including a two-run homer in the ninth by Frank Howard, the majors' 1968 leader.

"It's only one game," said Williams. "I was glad the President was here. We need all the help we can get." Then he summed up his feelings in one word—"Lousy!"

The President, though, proved to be a prophet. "He kept telling us to watch out for Howard in the bottom of the ninth," said Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. "The President kept predicting Howard would hit a home run."

It was the first time in 19 seasons the Yankees were without Mickey Mantle on the roster, and the Washington scoreboard flashed the following message: "Hello, Mickey Mantle, wherever you are."

"He's fishing, somewhere off Acapulco, I think," said Phil Rizzuto, a Yankee broadcaster.

It was a bitter Georgia homecoming for San Francisco's King, who managed the Atlanta Crackers to the Southern Association pennant in 1956.

Trailing 3-1, the Giants routed Pat Jarvis in the seventh, scoring three times on a double by Bobby Etheridge, singles by Hal Lanier, pinch hitter Bob Burda and Willie Mays, a walk to Bobby and Willie McCovey's sacrifice fly.

That took 26-game winner

Juan Marichal off the hook. But the Braves pulled it out against Frank Linzy when Clete Boyer opened the ninth with a single and, one out later, scored on Sonny Jackson's triple. Mike Lum then singled Jackson home with the winner.

Dick Dietz homered for the Giants.

Don Drysdale withstood home runs by the first two batters he faced and settled down to pitch the Dodgers past Cincinnati. The tall right-hander's arm stiffened after six innings and Bill Singer finished up with hitless ball.

"I tell you, they kind of opened my eyes a little bit," Drysdale said after Pete Rose and Bobby Tolan clipped him for opening homers. But Tom Haller's single and Jim LeFebvre's single got one run back in the second and the Dodgers won it against Gary Nolan in the third on singles by Willie Crawford and Len Gabrielson and Ron Fairly's two-run triple.

Rookie umpire Dick Stello also opened some eyes when he nailed Drysdale once for taking more than the specified 20 seconds between pitches and called an automatic ball.

By Sun Devils

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — The University of Wisconsin baseball squad, opening its season with the threat of becoming punch-drunk, was knocked through the ropes again Monday by the powerful Sun Devils of Arizona State.

Having beaten the Badgers in Wisconsin's first three games of the campaign, Arizona State made it four in a row with a 12-1 decision Monday.

The Sun Devils, meeting the Badgers again tonight at Phoenix, have a combined scoring advantage of 44-3 over Wisconsin in their four games.

Wisconsin has had to practice indoors for the most part. Arizona State, with sunlight to help, has already played 33 games and has a 27-6 record.

The victors rapped out 16 hits Monday with three players driving home two runs each. Craig Swan hampered Wisconsin's chances by pitching seven scoreless innings, and raised his season record to 5-0.

Joe Miller took over pitching duties in the eighth, and was charged with Wisconsin's lone run.

THE WEDGE 'PUNCH' SHOT

THIS CAN BE A VALUABLE SHOT WHEN HITTING INTO THE WIND FROM 50, 60, OR 70 YARDS OUT... WHERE A LOW TRAJECTORY IS DESIRABLE FOR CONTROL. THIS SHOT WILL RUN FARTHER THAN A NORMAL WEDGE SHOT (A HELPFUL FEATURE WHEN YOU WANT THE BALL TO LAND SHORT AND BOUNCE UP TO THE HOLE).

POSITION THE BALL MIDWAY BETWEEN THE FEET, AND USE A SHORT, BUT FIRM, AND SLIGHTLY MORE UPRIGHT BACK-SWING. AT THE BOTTOM OF THE SWING TRY TO HIT HARD WITH YOUR HANDS (WELL DOWN AND THROUGH THE BALL).

Senator Flies Over Battle

Helicopter Not Fired on as Fight Rages in Bamboo Jungle

SAIGON (AP) — Pierce fight- ing raged in bamboo jungles 40 miles northwest of Saigon Monday, and while it was going on a night. Casualties and damage member of the U.S. Senate's Armed Services Committee flew overhead in a helicopter.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., watched American fighter-bombers, helicopter gunships and M48 tanks pound about 200 North Vietnamese troops in "spider" holes and other fighting positions covered by thick bamboo.

The senator's helicopter was not fired on, a U.S. spokesman said.

The battle raged for seven hours until dark "when the remaining enemy evaded and withdrew" the U.S. Command said.

Infantrymen from the U.S. 25th Division searched the battlefield and found the bodies of 33 North Vietnamese troops, 16 rifles and nine rocket-grenade launchers and machine guns.

Three men of the 25th Division were killed and seven wounded.

"We'd been probing that area looking for spider holes and fighting positions," an officer said, "and we found them."

The American troops, riding M48 tanks and armored personnel carriers, encountered heavy rocket grenade and machine-gun fire throughout the day. But spokesmen said none of the armored vehicles was knocked out.

The enemy troops were "really dug in," the American officer said. "They stayed to fight. Then what was left of them moved out under the cover of darkness."

The 43-year-old senator spent most of Monday afternoon with the 25th Division on the third day of his tour of Vietnam. He is scheduled to leave Wednesday.

Tower also visited the division's patrol base Mahone II, about 45 miles northwest of Saigon, the scene of heavy fighting in the opening days of the Viet Cong's spring offensive, which began Feb. 23.

Tower's helicopter also set down near the Boi Loi Woods, where he inspected the controversial Sheridan tank, which first went into combat in mid-February.

Called Outstanding Lt. Col. Robert S. McGowan of Washington, D.C., told Tower that some modifications are being made on the new weapon but he said it is an outstanding fighting tank and is generally well accepted by the troops and command.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., has said the tank has so many defects it is unsuitable for the war in Vietnam.

There were no reports from Operation Purple Martin, an operation by 3,000 U.S. Marines kicked off in the far northwest of South Vietnam March 31 as part of a drive to cut North Vietnamese supply lines.

But to the southeast, in a similar operation by 8,000 Marines, the U.S. Command said the Leathernecks seized a North Vietnamese base camp and hospital complex and killed 36 enemy soldiers. U.S. casualties were given as one killed and one wounded. This operation, known as Oklahoma Hills, began as a sweep 20 miles southwest of the big American base at Da Nang.

President Sees 'His' Team Lose

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, the man who never gave up his dream of the presidency, didn't give up on the Washington Senators Monday either—even when they were eight runs behind.

"He kept predicting a big rally," said baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who sat in the presidential box for the American League opener.

The big rally never came and the traditional tailend Senators lost to the New York Yankees 8-4.

By the ninth inning with the score 8-2, Nixon had stopped forecasting a Senators' blitzkrieg.

But, said Kuhn, "he said Frank Howard would be worth watching his last time up."

Howard brought the record opening day crowd of 45,113, including the President, to its feet with a clothesline shot to straight center for a two-run homer.

The President said that when he moved to the capital from New York he took his major league baseball allegiance with him.

Talking to Yankee manager Ralph Houk and Senators manager Ted Williams, the President said:

"When I was in New York, I cheered for the Yankees. Now I'm in Washington."

U.S. Halts Its Demand For Arms Inspections

President Nixon winds up Monday to throw out the first pitch of the major league baseball season in Washington's Robert F. Kennedy Stadium. The New York Yankees and Washington Senators met in the traditional opener. Below, the President cheers as the Senators' Frank Howard hits a ninth-inning home run. There was little else for Washington fans to cheer for, however, as the Yankees won, 8-4. (AP Wirephotos)

New Policy Still Seeks Safeguards

GENEVA (AP) — In a new bid to halt production of nuclear weapons, the United States today dropped its demand for American inspection of Soviet facilities.

U.S. Delegate Adrian S. Fisher appealed to the 17-nation disarmament conference for an agreement that would halt the production of all fissionable material such as enriched uranium and plutonium. He also repeated the American offer to transfer 60,000 kilos of enriched uranium, U235, to peaceful purposes, if the Soviet Union did the same with 40,000 kilos of the same material. A kilo is 2.2 pounds.

In what he termed "a change in the previous position of the United States," Fisher proposed that the agreement be safeguarded by the International Atomic Energy Agency, IAEA, in Vienna.

Previously the United States had insisted on an inspection system involving "substantial elements of adversary inspection, particularly in the search for undisclosed facilities."

Mutual Visits

This would mean U.S. and Soviet inspection teams visiting each other's facilities, a concept which has always been strongly opposed by the Russians on grounds that it could lead to spying.

Fisher said such an argument "clearly cannot be applied to the inspection system we are now discussing."

He also took issue with another old Soviet argument that a cutoff agreement is no use without destruction of current stockpiles.

"The lack of validity of such an assertion is clear, we believe, if we examine its logical corollary—that no steps toward halting the nuclear arms race are worthwhile if they do not completely eliminate existing nuclear arsenals. This is a thesis which this conference cannot accept in its work," he said.

Reminding delegates that the U.S. cutoff proposal has been around for 13 years, Fisher

Nixon Praises Jordan's King

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jordan's embattled, pro-Western King Hussein was welcomed to the White House today by President Nixon who described the monarch as a man of "courage, wisdom and moderation."

In this world characterized by "very explosive problems," Nixon told his guest, "leadership is required... and these three qualities (of leadership) we have seen in you."

Hussein, on his third visit here since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, told the President he feels a "great responsibility" to discuss the grave problems of the Middle East.

"I really hope we will move in the direction of a just and honorable peace in this explosive situation fraught with danger," he said.

Hussein said on his arrival Monday in New York he fears another major war threatens in the Mideast with the "possibility of outside involvement."

"If no solution is found I think the danger of another major conflict in the area in the not too distant future is very real," he added.

Hussein also endorsed Big Four efforts at the United Nations to settle the Mideast problem and Nixon said today he is looking forward in his talks with the monarch to "seeking new avenues which could lead to a permanent peace."

Hussein was flown in by helicopter from colonial Williamsburg, Va., where he spent the night.

He was to lunch at the State Department with Secretary of State William P. Rogers and then return to the White House for a black-tie stag dinner.

Within hours after arriving in New York, guns blazed across the Jordanian-Israeli border and 13 persons were wounded in another of the almost continuous duels that keep the region's tempers at white heat.

In the latest attack, the Israeli army said rockets were fired from the Jordanian port of Aqaba into the Israeli resort of Eilat and that the "Israeli air force attacked the sources of fire and silenced them."

Israel retaliated with air attacks against Aqaba.

In another important development Monday Secretary of State William P. Rogers declared at a news conference that "Israel... has a right to exist."

Rebuke to Arabs

Rogers made no mention of any Arab countries directly, but his remarks were considered a stiff rebuke to the Arab position.

Hussein is one of the most flexible and pro-Western of the Arab leaders. But he rules a land shorn of its richest province and overcrowded with refugees which has become a main base for Palestinian guerrillas waging hit-and-run war against Israel.

In advance of his meeting with Nixon, Hussein said he did not have a plan for peace but said "I do believe I have some good thoughts to put forth."

He is known, however, to believe that all hopes for peace lie with the talks that opened in New York last week between the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France.

Killed in Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department formally reported Monday the death in Vietnam of Army Spec. 4 Lawrence J. Butler, husband of Donna L. Butler, rural Oneida, Wis.

The department also listed Spec. 4 Robert M. Beck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton E. Beck of rural Anawa, Shawano County, as missing in action.

Arabs and Israelis Trade Fire At Gulf of Aqaba, Suez Canal

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel and the Arabs battled at the head of the Gulf of Aqaba and across the Suez Canal today, with each side accusing the other of starting the hostilities.

The Israeli army said rockets from the Jordanian port of Aqaba landed on the nearby Israeli port of Eilat, and Israeli air force jets quickly retaliated with an attack on the Jordanian port.

Al Fatah, the Arab guerrilla organization, charged that the Israeli planes struck first and said its troops shelled Eilat with heavy rockets in retaliation. Al Fatah claimed its rockets heavily damaged "vital installations" in the Israeli town and port and killed or wounded a large number of Israelis.

Meanwhile, Israeli and Egyptian guns duelled across the Suez Canal throughout the morning.

Later U.S. observers managed to arrange cease-fire in both the Gulf of Aqaba and Suez Canal sectors after fighting had raged for more than five hours on each front.

A Jordanian army spokesman said eight civilians were killed, including a woman and four children, and nine were wounded when two Israeli jets fired rockets into a residential section of Aqaba. Jordan's only port file said the wounded included the Belgian vicar of a Roman Catholic church and his mother.

The spokesman said the jets damaged 13 houses, a church and girls' school and a police post. The spokesman made no mention of the attack of Eilat and said Jordan was complaining to the U.N. Security Council about the raid on Aqaba.

An Israeli army spokesman said the planes were dispatched to silence rocket launchers blasting Eilat. Israel's gateway to East Africa and the Far East. The two port towns are only three miles apart at the head of the Gulf of Aqaba. Thirteen persons were injured, nine seriously, when the Jordanian rockets exploded in an apartment complex in downtown Eilat, the Israeli spokesman said. One of the injured was a baby girl, sleeping on a cot. Part of the roof fell on her, but a thick layer of blankets gave her some protection.

A clerk at the Queen of Sheba Hotel in Eilat said he was awakened by the Jordanian rockets.

"We could hear the bangs as they fell in the town," he said. "Soon after that the planes went to Aqaba and dropped a couple of bombs."

It was the most serious outbreak on record in the Eilat region, the Israeli army spokesman said, and the first since November.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, who toured Eilat with Chief of Staff Haim Barlev to inspect the damage, blamed the Arab guerrilla organization Al Fatah for the attack by adding: "It is clear the responsibility rests with the Jordanian government. It is in their hands and those of the Arab Legion (Jordan's army) to prevent attacks from the Aqaba area toward Eilat."

Condemned American Flees Mexican Prison

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I can't think they'd send me back—I'm innocent," said Dykes Askew Simmons after his escape from a Mexican prison where he spent 10 years under sentence of death as a killer.

Simmons, who walked out of the Monterrey prison disguised as a woman, was driven across the Texas border in a friend's car and he flew to Los Angeles Monday from Harlingen with his lawyer, Dennis Fredericksen of Beverly Hills.

"They may try to extradite me," said the 40-year-old former Ft. Worth, Tex. laborer. "I'm not running anywhere. After 10 years I've got to let show my clean streets runs on the floor. No more adobe I'm free."

In Washington a State Department spokesman said there had been no word from Mexico on possible extradition proceedings. Simmons is a U.S. citizen and was the first ever given a death sentence in a Mexican court.

Simmons had been held in Monterrey since Oct. 12, 1959, when he was arrested while on a vacation trip and accused of fatally shooting three members of a dentist's family.

Convicted and sentenced to die by firing squad, Simmons continued to protest his innocence and ask for official U.S. aid to win his freedom.

A State Department spokesman said two years ago "We are quietly working through proper channels."

Convinced there was no hope of help from Washington, he said he spread pancake makeup on his face Sunday, a "stew" on his head and climbed into a dress "padded in all the appropriate places."

Then, with about 400 women who had been visiting family members at the Nuevo Leon state prison at Monterrey, he walked out the gates which had closed him in since 1959, went another 500 yards to a waiting car and was driven to Texas.

After a plane flight to Los Angeles, Simmons said Monday night he had help in the escape but would not elaborate.

The slain Mexicans were Hilda Perez Villagomez, 22, her sister Marta, 19, and her brother Manuel, 17. Dying of gunshot wounds, Hilda described the killer as a big light-haired American with one or two gold teeth, and driving a 1958 light blue car.

Simmons was darker haired, almost 35 pounds lighter and three inches shorter, had no gold teeth and drove a 1954 car of a different make. Identifying him in her hospital room Hilda said: "I am almost sure. May God forgive me if I made a mistake."

About 20 months after his conviction, a higher court ruled the trial court erred in accepting the young women's deathbed identification. The trial court reaffirmed the conviction and for a second time sentenced Simmons to death.

Two days after his first conviction, Simmons said, he was due to die before a firing squad but "it just didn't happen."

When Mexican authorities had not ordered his execution after nearly a year in prison, Simmons said, his guards tried to take the matter into their own hands.

"About eight of them took me to the front gate," he said "and three started pushing me. The others were to shoot me."

"I fought back into the prison I wouldn't let go."

"They almost beat me to death. My nose was broken and there were marks all over my body from where they kicked me. They said I'd fallen off a wall trying to escape."

After fleeing from prison in Mexico, Dykes Askew Simmons waits in a San Antonio motel room before flying to Los Angeles. (AP Wirephotos) general unit relief system demands change because:

—It does not provide distinct guidelines for either need determination or establish standards for allowances.
—There is no provision for social services to be rendered to a segment of the population which would benefit from such services.
—It makes it impossible for more than 1,200 individual units to administer "a complicated and expensive system" Many of these units reportedly do not have personnel which can understand the complicated rulings in determining legal settlement, an integral part of the program.
—Passage of the county system of relief would make many improvements, it was claimed.

The youth was first taken to the police station and his mother was contacted.

Higher Levies Unlikely, Researchers Say

Tarr Plan Will Equalize Tax Level

MADISON (AP)— A research group says there is little evidence to support fears that municipalities would take advantage of the Tarr task force's shared tax recommendation by increasing local tax levies.
The Citizens Governmental Research Bureau, in a report issued Saturday, said its study of the Tarr committee's work indicates the recommended tax would do exactly as intended—making tax levels among Wisconsin municipalities more equal.

The Tarr committee, appointed by Gov. Warren P. Knowles, has drawn up proposals for revised distribution of taxes which the state shares with communities. The tax proposals, including transitional payments and increased school aids, are before the legislature in the form of Senate Bill 249.
"Greater Uniformity"
The bureau said it is satisfied that the Tarr plan would "reduce the number of Wisconsin communities with unusually high or unusually low tax rates" and would "achieve greater uniformity of rates."

The bureau estimated that local property taxes in 1,450 of Wisconsin's 1,836 municipalities could be reduced because of the state's share of corporate and increased assistance from the income taxes, vehicle registration fees, utility taxes and liquor taxes which would remain unchanged.

The municipalities' and counties' share would be consolidated in a separate fund with appropriations for property tax relief.
From this fund, local government units would get payments to help fill in any financial pinch caused by a utility's property tax exemption.
Each municipality also would receive payments geared to population—payments of $30 per tax position between communities would not change.

The bureau points out that although local tax levels may become more equal, the relative positions between communities would not change.
Still Be Lowest
For example, the three Milwaukee suburbs with the lowest current tax rates—Wauwatosa, West Milwaukee and Glendale—would still be the lowest under the Tarr plan.
For that matter, the four highest in the area — Milwaukee, Greendale, Greentield and Franklin — would still be the highest. The new formula would simply bring them closer to the state's taxpayers about $120,000 average.

Precise Equality

Court Strengthens Redistricting Rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, tightening up Monday required states to justify any variance from exact mathematical equality in the apportionment of these districts on the basis of population.

In a 6-3 decision, the court said states must make "good faith efforts to achieve precise mathematical equality" in the apportionment of these districts on the basis of population.

And, the ruling continued, "the state must justify each variance no matter how small."

The decision, given by Justice William J. Brennan Jr., disapproved the 1967 reapportionment of Missouri's congressional districts. He said "clearly, the population variances among the Missouri congressional districts were not unavoidable."

The Missouri plan showed a spread of 25,802 people from the

Warren Trying to Halt Its Sales Promotion Practices

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Action was started Monday in Winnebago County Circuit Court by Atty. Gen. Robert Warren to halt some sales promotion practices of Vehicle Safety Products, Inc., Neenah.

The move against the company also is directed at Harleth A. Johnson, Milwaukee, president and treasurer of the firm, and Wayne R. Wolfe, Neenah, vice president and secretary.

The complaint contends that the sales promotion plan employed by the defendants is an illegal lottery and also constitutes a violation of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture's administrative referral selling code.

The complaint said that the defendants are engaged in the offering for sale, the sale and distribution of automobile stabilizers or safety control units which are designed to enable drivers to drive more safely and easily turn and stop their vehicles.

The investigation leading to the filing of the complaint was a joint effort of the Wisconsin Department of Justice and the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture.

A hearing has been set for April 25 on a temporary injunction pending final determination of the case.

Runaway Youth Is Returned to Appleton

A 14-year-old Appleton boy who ran away from home last Wednesday, was questioned by police after he was returned from Menomonee Falls Sunday afternoon.

The youth, who reportedly left home after a disagreement with his father, was apprehended by Menomonee Falls police. Police here questioned him about several recent burglaries in the Appleton area.

He was released to his parents pending further investigation.

Bonfire Spreads to Three-Acre Tract East of New London

NEW LONDON — About three acres of marsh grass burned over about 1 p.m. Monday in the Town of Liberty, about 1 1/2 miles east of here on Alcan Road.

The fire started from a bonfire at the Marvin Kriesel home, at a route 1, and spread to the marsh. Neighbors were battling the fire and had isolated it from buildings when the New London Fire Chief Robert Besaw cautioned persons to observe extreme caution when burning leaves and grass and to follow all restrictions.

Alert Motorist Stops Burglary

A 19-year-old northside Appleton motorist apparently foiled an early morning burglary attempt Monday, police said.

The youth said he was west-bound on Wisconsin Avenue, near Richmond Street, when he heard an alarm from one of the buildings.

He said he drove into a parking lot near Wirtz's Beverages, 508 W. Wisconsin Ave., and saw two boys dressed in black run from behind the beer depot, to the east.

Police were summoned, but no one was found in the area.

Farmers Leary of Consolidation

Wisconsin Dairy Co-Ops Offered Own District in Marketing Plan

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin dairy co-op members, many of them hesitant about joining a proposed Midwestern cooperative, were offered the advantages Monday of a separate district of their own in the new marketing set-up.

Suggestions that Wisconsin be given its own district-level position of semi-independence reflected "farmers' questions about who would have the most control in the multi-state cooperative, and what the consolidation of existing cooperatives might do to prices paid Wisconsin farmers for milk."

About 150 dairy leaders attended a meeting Monday, the fourth since February when a committee was named to begin organizing a cooperative stretching from Texas to the Canadian border. Officials have estimated the new combine could represent 10 per cent of the nation's dairy production.

New London Man Jailed for Drug Charges

OSHKOSH—Gene Alfred Earl, 27, New London, was sentenced to two years in the Wisconsin State Reformatory at Green Bay Monday on an amended charge of possession of marijuana.

Outagamie County Circuit Judge Andrew Parnell, sitting in Winnebago County Circuit Court, told the defendant, who was a student at Oshkosh State University, that to deal lightly with the case would be "bad for the morale of the whole university community."

Earl had originally pleaded innocent of possession and sale of marijuana but changed his plea to guilty on Feb. 17 to the amended charge.

Judge Parnell, in pronouncing sentence, noted that Earl had "deliberately become involved in the sale of illegal drugs." The judge added that Earl's own use of the drugs was not so bad but that he had "extended himself to involve others."

Earl was arrested by authorities Feb. 9, 1968, after selling a package of marijuana to an 18-year-old OSU coed who was working as an informant for the district attorney's office.

Dist. Atty. Thomas Fink said that when Earl was arrested he had possession of five packages of marijuana, six packages of hashish and six packages of opium.

Investigation Completed Cause of Chilton Fire Apparently Discovered

CHILTON — Investigation Monday by a state fire marshal has apparently disclosed the cause of the Friday morning house fire which killed the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Faust, but local authorities Tuesday made only limited comment.

Calumet County Coroner Leroy Hughes acknowledged that the cause of the fire had been determined after questioning the Fausti's four-year-old son, and that there had been no explosion or malfunction of the stove or heater. The fire originated in the kitchen.

However, by mutual agreement of the officials involved, any further comment was to come from the fire marshal, Henry Fiege of Wausau, Hughes said.

Fiege was out of town this morning and could not be reached.

Other officials participating in the investigation were Calumet County Sheriff C. J. Kosmosky, Chilton Police Chief Dan Albedyll and Chilton Fire Chief Norbert Sturm.

The Friday morning blaze swept through the Fausti's rented house at 109 Chestnut St. as the parents, both night shift workers, were sleeping late. The Fausti's three-year-old son, George, was found dead in his crib from smoke inhalation.

Mr. and Mrs. Faust, the four-year-old son, a one-year-old son, and their grandfather, George Leistau, were all taken to Calumet Memorial Hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation from the fire.

Esler Wants Tower First, Not Taxiway

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The Outagamie County Board airport committee was warned Monday to change its project priorities or run the risk of losing favor with the county board for future allocations.

County Board Chairman Sylvester Esler, Appleton, told the committee it should drop plans for building taxiways at this time on the northwest-southeast runway. The Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) has approved a $294,000 grant for the project, but the county's share amounts to $377,000, of which nearly $100,000 must be allocated.

Unless it changes priorities, "when you come in and ask the county board, there'll be no money," Esler warned. He noted the county board had never approved allocating money for the project.

Control Tower

He said the county airport needs a control tower more at this time than the taxiways.

"That should be our first priority," he said, noting it is important as a safety factor at the fast-growing airport.

Court Injunction

Union Ordered Not To Picket at King

WAUPACA — An injunction was filed Friday against Teamsters Local 563 of Appleton, prohibiting members from picketing at or in the vicinity of the sewerage plant project of the Woerfel Corp., Grand Army Home, King.

The legal action was another part of the seven-month-old strike of the Teamsters against Faulks Brothers Construction Co., which is supplying ready-mix concrete to the Woerfel Corp. construction site and two other construction projects now underway at the Grand Army Home.

"This really is just a legal tool which prohibits picketing and any other action which might force or require the

To Picket at King

Supv. John Dietz, Appleton, committee chairman, said he did not disagree, but added: "If you abandon this project (taxiways) now, there will be no money for it from the FAA ever."

Dietz and other committee members also questioned whether the $313,000, which is part of the county's share, would be rebated to the county if the project was dropped. This money is owed to the county by the federal government on a slow-to-arrive grant for land acquisition at the new airport site.

Specific Use

Supv. Charles Wussow, Appleton, said the state had been clear that the money must be used in this project. Quoting from a State Department of Transportation letter, he said the use is "firm and specific" and "can't be transferred (to another project) if not designated."

He said the county has no alternative.

Esler contended the money belonged to the county and could be used for other projects, namely a tower. He noted expenditures at the airport have been heavy, and proper priorities must be established.

Dietz noted the 1966 airport plan called for the taxiways as the next priority, and the committee had been going on this basis.

'Mass for Peace' Slated in Chilton

BY DAVID WEITZ
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Teens are being exposed to marijuana in Chilton according to Police Chief Daniel Albedyll.

Although investigations have been fruitless, Albedyll says "We've heard it (marijuana) is around town."

Police, school and medical authorities from Calumet County as well as from all over the state and nation are becoming increasingly aware of the use of marijuana and drugs by young persons and of its availability to them.

In this area, however, there are no provable instances of drug sales or use.

Albedyll blamed manpower shortages for the lack of success in pinpointing narcotic use. He said state law enforcement assistance is needed in Chilton, and communities like it, to find the narcotics.

Senator Flies Over Battle

Helicopter Not Fired on as Fight Rages in Bamboo Jungle

SAIGON (AP) — Fierce fighting raged in bamboo jungles 40 miles northwest of Saigon Monday night. Casualties and damage were reported light.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Texas, watched American fighter-bombers, helicopter gunships and M48 tanks pound about 200 North Vietnamese entrenched in "spider" holes and other fighting positions covered by thick bamboo.

The senator's helicopter was not fired on, a U.S. spokesman said.

The battle raged for seven hours until dark "when the remaining enemy evaded and withdrew" the U.S. Command said.

Infantrymen from the U.S. 25th Division searched the battlefield and found the bodies of 33 North Vietnamese troops, 16 rifles and nine rocket-grenade launchers and machine guns.

Three men of the 25th Division were killed and seven wounded.

"We'd been probing that area looking for spider holes and fighting positions," an officer said, "and we found them."

The American troops, riding M48 tanks and armored personnel carriers, encountered heavy rocket grenade and machine-gun fire throughout the day. But spokesmen said none of the armored vehicles was knocked out.

The enemy troops were "really dug in," the American officer said. "They stayed to fight. Then what was left of them moved out under the cover of darkness."

The 43-year-old senator spent most of Monday afternoon with the 25th Division on the third day of his tour of Vietnam. He is scheduled to leave Wednesday.

Tower also visited the division's patrol base Mahone II, about 45 miles northwest of Saigon, the scene of heavy fighting in the opening days of the Viet Cong's spring offensive, which began Feb. 23.

Tower's helicopter also set down near the Boi Loi Woods where he inspected the controversial Sheridan tank, which first went into combat in mid-February.

Called Outstanding Lt. Col. Robert S. McGowan of Washington, D.C., told Tower that some modifications are being made on the new weapon but he said it is an outstanding fighting tank and is generally well accepted by the troops and command.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., has said the tank has so many defects it is unsuitable for the war in Vietnam.

There were no reports from Operation Purple Martin, an operation by 3,000 U.S. Marines kicked off in the far northwest of South Vietnam March 31 as part of a drive to cut North Vietnamese supply lines.

But to the southeast, in a similar operation by 8,000 Marines, the U.S. Command said the Leathernecks seized a North Vietnamese base camp and hospital complex and killed 36 enemy soldiers. U.S. casualties were given as one killed and one wounded. This operation, known as Oklahoma Hills, began as a sweep 20 miles southwest of the big American base at Da Nang.

President Sees 'His' Team Lose

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, the man who never gave up his dream of the presidency, didn't give up on the Washington Senators Monday either—even when they were eight runs behind.

"He kept predicting a big rally," said baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who sat in the presidential box for the American League opener.

The big rally never came and the traditional tailend Senators lost to the New York Yankees 8-4.

By the ninth inning with the score 8-2, Nixon had stopped forecasting a Senators' blitzkrieg.

But, said Kuhn, "he said Frank Howard would be worth watching his last time up."

Howard brought the record opening day crowd of 45,113, including the President, to its feet with a clothesline shot to straight center for a two-run homer.

The President said that when he moved to the capital from New York he took his major league baseball allegiance with him.

Talking to Yankee manager Ralph Houk and Senators manager Ted Williams, the President said:

"When I was in New York, I cheered for the Yankees. Now I'm in Washington."

U.S. Halts Its Demand For Arms Inspections

New Policy Still Seeks Safeguards

GENEVA (AP) — In a new bid to halt production of nuclear weapons, the United States today dropped its demand for American inspection of Soviet facilities.

U.S. Delegate Adrian S. Fisher appealed to the 17-nation disarmament conference for an agreement that would halt the production of all fissionable material such as enriched uranium and plutonium. He also repeated the American offer to transfer 60,000 kilos of enriched uranium, U235, to peaceful purposes, if the Soviet Union did the same with 40,000 kilos of the same material. A kilo is 2.2 pounds.

In what he termed "a change in the previous position of the United States, Fisher proposed that the agreement be safeguarded by the International Atomic Energy Agency, IAEA, in Vienna.

Previously the United States had insisted on an inspection system involving "substantial elements of adversary inspection, particularly in the search for undisclosed facilities."

Mutual Visits This would mean U.S. and Soviet inspection teams visiting each other's facilities, a concept which has always been strongly opposed by the Russians on grounds that it could lead to spying.

Fisher said such an argument "clearly cannot be applied to the inspection system we are now discussing."

He also took issue with another old Soviet argument that a cutoff agreement is no use without destruction of current stockpiles.

"The lack of validity of such an assertion is clear, we believe, if we examine its logical corollary—that no steps toward halting the nuclear arms race are worthwhile if they do not completely eliminate existing nuclear arsenals. This is a thesis which this conference cannot accept in its work," he said.

Reminding delegates that the U.S. cutoff proposal has been around for 13 years, Fisher

Earlier Attempt Fails at Freedom Gunman Robs Greenville Bank Of Several Thousand Dollars

A lone gunman, unsuccessful in a bank robbery attempt at Freedom State Bank, pointed a closed amount of money was taken late this morning from the Greenville branch of the First National Bank of Appleton. The neatly-dressed gunman, about 60 and armed with a revolver, then headed north on State 76.

Earlier in the day, a neatly-dressed gunman walked into the bank at the time of the robbery. They were Jerome Smith, 25, 21 Julie St., Appleton, and Mrs. Vilma Keller, Greenville, a teller. Smith is assistant cashier of the bank's Appleton office and was working as relief manager at the Greenville bank.

Two employees were in the bank at the time of the robbery. They were Jerome Smith, 25, 21 Julie St., Appleton, and Mrs. Vilma Keller, Greenville, a teller. Smith is assistant cashier of the bank's Appleton office and was working as relief manager at the Greenville bank.

Smith said the gunman had been in the bank about 10:45 a.m., stayed about 20 minutes, left, and came back after 10 minutes. The man went into Smith's office, Smith said. The pair talked for a few minutes, reportedly about the man's request to cash some checks, and the gunman then pulled the revolver. Smith said. Smith was told then that this was a holdup.

The pair came out of Smith's office, Smith said, and went over to Mrs. Keller's cage, where Smith and Mrs. Keller were ordered to empty the cash drawers.

After he had the money, the gunman ordered Smith and Mrs. Keller into a washroom, warning them not to come out for a while because he would be waiting, Smith said. The gunman earlier reportedly had told the employees that he'd kill them if they tripped an alarm.

Authorities later said they had found a vehicle which matched the description of the one the gunman fled in from the Greenville bank. It was found, they said, on County Trunk S and Rextford Road south of Shiocton, about 6 miles north of Greenville.

Condemned American Flees Mexican Prison

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I can't think they'd send me back—I'm innocent," said Dykes Askew Simmons after his escape from a Mexican prison where he spent 10 years under sentence of death as a killer.

Simmons, who walked out of the Monterey prison disguised as a woman, was driven across the Texas border in a friend's car and he flew to Los Angeles Monday from Harlingen with his lawyer, Dennis Frederickson of Beverly Hills.

"They may try to extradite me," said the 40-year-old former Ft. Worth, Tex., laborer. "I'm not running anywhere. After 10 years I've got hot showers, clean sheets, rugs on the floor. No more adobe. I'm free."

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said there had been no word from Mexico on possible extradition proceedings. Simmons is a U.S. citizen and was the first ever given a death sentence in a Mexican court.

Simmons had been held in Monterey since Oct. 12, 1959, when he was arrested while on a vacation trip and accused of fatally shooting three members of a dentist's family.

Convicted and sentenced to die by firing squad, Simmons continued to protest his innocence and ask for official U.S. aid to win his freedom.

A State Department spokesman said two years ago "We are quietly working through proper channels."

Convinced there was no hope of help from Washington, he said, he spread panache makeup on his face Sunday, put a shawl on his head and climbed into a dress "padded in all the appropriate places."

Then, with about 400 women who had been visiting family members at the Nuevo Leon state prison at Monterrey, he walked out the gates which had closed him in since 1959, went another 500 yards to a waiting car and was driven to Texas.

After a plane flight to Los Angeles, Simmons said Monday night he had help in the escape but would not elaborate.

The slain Mexicans were Hilda Perez Villagomez, 22, her sister Maria, 19, and her brother Manuel, 17. Dying of gunshot wounds, Hilda described the killer as a big light-haired American with one or two gold teeth, and driving a 1958 light blue car.

Simmons was darker haired, almost 35 pounds lighter and three inches shorter, had no gold teeth and drove a 1954 car of a different make. Identifying him in her hospital room Hilda said: "I am almost sure May God forgive me if I made a mistake."

About 20 months after his conviction, a higher court ruled the trial court erred in accepting the young women's deathbed identification. The trial court reaffirmed the conviction and for a second time sentenced Simmons to death.

Two days after his first conviction, Simmons said, he was due to die before a firing squad but "it just didn't happen."

When Mexican authorities had not ordered his execution after nearly a year in prison, Simmons said, his guards tried to take the matter into their own hands.

"About eight of them took me to the front gate," he said "and three started pushing me. The others were to shoot me."

"I fought back into the prison. I wouldn't let go."

"They almost beat me to death. My nose was broken and there were marks all over my body, from where they kicked me. They said I'd fallen off a wall trying to escape."

Many Are Almost Ignored Soviet Bombers Near U.S. Become Routine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet bomber flights to the fringe of North America have become so routine in recent months that U.S. fighters aren't always sent to intercept them, according to Pentagon sources.

Over the last 15 months, these sources say, there have been about three dozen incidents of Soviet planes flying near continental North America, usually Alaska or Canada.

However, the Soviets have been careful to turn back before actually flying over U.S. or Canadian territory, the sources said.

While continental defense officials occasionally may decide not to scramble interceptors, the Soviet bombers are always monitored on radar from the time they get within a few hundred miles of the North American coastline until they leave.

Only two or three of the Soviet flights by the Pentagon, which officially by the Pentagon, which indicates the low key attitude the U.S. government is taking.

The most recent Soviet flight, sources report, occurred April 1 when eight to 10 TU-16 Badgers came within 65 miles of Northwest Alaska.

The Alaskan Air Command scrambled F102 interceptors, but no nose-to-nose confrontation was necessary.

The Badger is a twin turbo jet aircraft roughly comparable to the old American B47 and capable of speeds up to 580 mph.

Seven other Soviet flights near U.S. territory this year are recorded on a list now stamped secret in the Pentagon.

In addition, there were more than 25 other similar incidents in 1966 not only off Alaska but near Newfoundland, Labrador, Iceland, and around the Aleutian Island chain in the Pacific.

Usually the Soviet planes show up in groups of two or three, but on one mission this past January, seven TU-95 Bear reconnaissance bombers came within 30 nautical miles of Northwest Alaska. The Bear is a 4,000 m.p.h. turbo prop capable

Friendlier Ties Again Pushed With Peking

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Communist Party conference in Nixon administration, rebuffed Peking will end with some change of direction in the Asian giant's foreign policy.

"But in any event we are willing to do what we can do to have more friendly relations with Red China," he added, "but we are not going to do it in the spirit of exploiting it because we think it will give us some advantage against the Soviet Union."

He said it is possible the Ninth of flying 7,800 miles without refueling.

Six to eight Bears were intercepted by U.S. fighters last summer, again off Northwestern Alaska, in another major flight which went unpublicized.

Pentagon sources say the Soviets have been careful to halt their approaches within 30 to 150 miles of North American territory during the 15-month period.

In 1963 the United States protested strongly to the Soviet Union that two reconnaissance bombers had flown 30 miles inland across the southwestern tip of Alaska. The Soviets denied any incursion.

Pentagon sources are frank to admit the United States has no real basis for complaint so long as the Soviet planes remain outside NATO territory.

Furthermore, the United States could hardly protest that the flights are provocative. Strategic Air Command training missions send nuclear-capable B52s quite regularly into Arctic regions near Soviet territory.

Sources believe the Soviets have three reasons for conducting what appears to be a regular program of flights toward the United States:

They want to keep a constant check on how long it takes U.S. radar to detect incoming planes and scramble fighters to intercept them.

—The flights provide Soviet air crews with training made highly realistic when U.S. fighters meet them.

—The Soviets collect various intelligence information from the missions. Even without flying over U.S. territory, they can take long range photographs, test radar detection systems and maintain data on American radio frequencies.

The decision whether to send U.S. jets to meet Soviet planes entering the air defense zone usually depends on the speed and angle of approach of the incoming flight.

He said the Nixon administration is reviewing all of its commitments and each time when one of the base agreements involving troop deployments overseas comes up for renewal. "We will consider it."

He emphasized "that situations change in the fact that ten or 15 years ago certain things were necessary. That does not mean that they are necessary today."

Supreme Court Stands Fast

No Room for Common Sense?

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's latest one-man one-vote ruling represents a refusal to yield to political realities in the states.

The Constitution, the court says, demands a "good faith" attempt to draw exactly equal congressional districts.

State legislators, using federal census figures, have to aim for the bulls-eye. If they don't, said Justice William J. Brennan Jr., "they must justify each variances."

All this looks like trouble for the legislators—and for the federal courts which will have to pass on apportionment plans.

For Brennan's opinion Monday rejected as possible justifications "partisan politics," the fact that a plan represents "reasonable legislative compromise figures, have to aim for m.s.e." or that the legislators didn't want to fragment areas with "distinct economic and social interests."

Justice Abe Fortas, to "dramatize the fallacy of inflexible insistence upon mathematical exactness, with no tolerance for reality," put his imagination to work.

Middle of Corridor

He saw legislators drawing a district line down the middle of the corridor of an apartment house or even dividing the residents of a single-family house between two districts.

In dismay, he said the court appeared to be rejecting every possible type of justification that could be advanced for population disparities.

Justice John Marshall Harlan complained, "The court refuses to permit any room for legislative common sense."

The point of the ruling was to clarify five words: "As nearly as is practicable."

Rolls Royce Owners Told To Return Cars for Checks

NEW YORK (AP) — Purchasers of the symbol of automotive opulence—a Rolls Royce—have run into a roadblock.

Rolls-Royce, Inc. announced Monday that it was recalling all cars it produced in the last four years to correct a potential steering defect.

The Rolls Royce is available in two models, a convertible selling for $31,600 and an economy sedan for $19,600. The English firm also produces Bentleys, identical except for the radiator grill, which sell for a few hundred dollars less. Custom models are more expensive, including one available only to "permanent heads of state."

More than 5,000 cars were recalled, a Rolls spokesman said. About 1,350 are in the United States.

The correction in the steering system, requiring 30 minutes work, would "naturally" be done free, he said, and about 30 per cent of the American owners have already brought their cars in.

Stressing that the correction was for a "potential" defect, the spokesman said: "Recent engineering test experience has shown that exceptional overload conditions may cause the side steering lever set screws on Bentley cars to relax their torque tightness."

other federal courts. Some were judged to have passed constitutional tests.

But no one was certain what degree of population equality was required. Could districts vary up to 15 per cent from mathematical perfection, or up to 10 per cent—or could they vary at all?

The 1967 Missouri plan, invalidating Monday, had a total range of only 5.96 per cent from the largest to the smallest district.

Missouri argued the variance should be considered "de minimis"—too small to be ruled at fault. Besides, the state said, the General Assembly acted out of a legitimate regard for the integrity of county lines, the compactness of districts, the political realities of "legislative interplay" and other reasons as well.

Reject Arguments

Brennan's opinion, joined by Chief Justice Earl Warren and Associate Justices Hugo L. Black, William O. Douglas and Thurgood Marshall, rejected both arguments.

Any cut-off point would be arbitrary, said Brennan, and to pick one "would encourage legislators to strive for that range rather than for equality as nearly as is practicable."

The states came up with all sorts of plans. Some were cut down by the Supreme Court or

Optimistic Reports On Secret Contacts May be Misleading

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers told a news conference Monday the presence of enemy negotiators in Paris, taken together with "indirect reports we have received" indicate "some interest in a negotiated settlement on their part."

"Whether this is being done just to mislead us or not," he said "there is no way of knowing until we proceed a little further down the road."

In Paris, South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Kieu Ky said flatly "The enemy at the present time is not ready for serious talks."

Rogers' comment, suggesting deep uncertainty about Communist intentions, appeared to be in line with word from other informants here that the United States and South Vietnam have encountered hard going in trying to set up regular secret negotiations on the basic issues of withdrawal of troops by both sides and a political settlement in South Vietnam.

Signs of Progress?

Rogers himself refused to discuss the question of progress, on which Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird spoke briefly last week. Laird said there were some signs of progress though he did not wish to raise false hopes. Several weeks ago President Nixon, in defending the secrecy of secret talks, said there had been "significant" but "limited" forward movement.

At that time there appeared to be some optimism in the new said: "No one can deny that nuclear confrontation would be at a much lower level, and the world a much better place if we had been able to obtain a cut-off when it was first proposed."

Fisher went on to reject a Swedist compromise treaty ban underground nuclear tests. Presented April 1, it provides that any nation suspected of violating the treaty could be challenged to prove otherwise. Complaints could also be referred to the U.N. Security Council, but on-site investigation could only be carried out with the permission of the accused country.

GM
MARK OF EXCELLENCE

Canadian Independence

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's visit to Washington and President Nixon was proper and cordial. But despite the long talks between the two national leaders, little has been announced about the direction Canada will take in foreign policy.

Canadian and American leaders worked firmly together in the development of the United Nations and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. But Canada has never joined the Organization of American States and it continues active trade with Cuba in spite of American objections and the partial boycott by other members of the OAS. A few weeks ago Canadian officials contacted the Communist government in Peking and suggested that diplomatic relations be resumed. And more recently Mr. Trudeau has announced that he wants a study in depth of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and has some doubts about whether Canada should remain a member.

While there is no suggestion of hostilities between Canada and the United States, all of these moves demonstrate clearly that Canadian officials do not agree with the American interpretation of the Communist world or the danger to non-Communist nations. Mr. Trudeau has pointed out that Canada must be tremendously influenced by what the United States does and that it is impossible for Canada to act without reference to the United States. But he has also pointed to the importance of Canadian independence in areas where it does not have to consult the United States. The withdrawal of Canada from NATO in particular would be contrary to President Nixon's announced belief that NATO must continue to be strong and important.

Part of the Canadian difference of opinion may stem from the feeling among many Canadians that they have been regarded as poor cousins by Americans. That there is grounds for this belief was demonstrated most recently by the failure of United States leaders even to consult the Canadians on President Nixon's decision on the antiballistic missile system. The switch from protecting the cities against nuclear attack from China to defending our own missiles against a first strike by the Soviet Union means that the intercepting would be done over Canada — well above its air space but putting Canadian cities in danger of fallout and blast. Understandably Canadians are concerned.

In the humorous book 1066 And All That, Richard Armour wrote that the British lost the American Revolution "because the allies were all on the other side." Increasingly it appears that our closest allies are having serious differences of opinion with the United States on foreign policy.

Trouble With the Philippines

In an interview published in U. S. News and World Report, President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines said that Asians could not defend themselves against the threat of China if the American military should go home and that he would not want to see the United States give up its bases in the Philippines. But the pressure is on and President Marcos conceded that anti-Americans among Filipinos are becoming more articulate if they are not really growing in number.

The problem is that whatever may be the opinions and fears of President Marcos, the political situation in his country is so shaky that he may not be able to maintain them. At a time when unity among non-Communist Asian nations is most important, there was the silly claim to Sabah. The Philippines have just withdrawn their small contingent of noncombatant troops from Vietnam although President Marcos suggests that the United States military strength was "perhaps... shy of what was needed." Meanwhile Filipinos as well as some Americans are demanding the Laurel-Langley agreement, which gives trade preferences to both countries in mutual deals, not be renewed when it expires in 1974. President Marcos, however, insists that it must be renewed as long as the Philippines gives the United States "special rights such as possession of military bases."

Part — perhaps the major part — of the growing antagonism between Filipinos and Americans in the islands is the inevitable conflicts that arise because of the presence of the American military. While it is not true at the top levels of command on either side, there is a contempt for each other between the ordinary American stationed in the Philippines and the everyday Filipino. The Filipino considers the American fair game because he is supposed to be so rich and rigid rationing has been established at American bases to try to slow down the thriving black market. Meanwhile the American is likely to consider every Filipino a thief. The activities of the bandit Huks, who may or may not have real Communist ties, do nothing to help matters as they prey upon both Americans and other Filipinos.

Clearly this is a situation that calls for a great deal of forbearance on both sides. But President Marcos is opposed, both by the extremists who want to get rid of almost all ties to the United States and by the wealthy who object to his attempts at social reform so desperately needed for economic progress in the Philippines. A people striving for real independence and identity are not likely to concede that they are not self-sufficient especially when there are the irritants presented by the American military. Only the realists like President Marcos will recognize that withdrawing permission for the American bases will mean the loss of about 150 million dollars a year and make a "shambles... of our balance of payments."

But the trend in Asia is for increased pressure to reduce the American military presence, particularly in the Philippines, on Okinawa and in Japan. What the Asians themselves must do is cooperate far more closely than they have in the past for mutual economic progress, still the best defense against the propaganda of the Communists. But it is clear that they must still rely upon American military strength to deter a Chinese attack even if it becomes merely the threat of American retaliation. Our experiences in Vietnam have demonstrated that we do not have the answer to the "national wars of liberation" which the Communists plan for politically unstable areas.

Let's Ban Use of DDT!

The Federal Food and Drug Administration recently announced that it had seized 22,555 pounds of commercial coho salmon caught in Michigan waters because DDT counts in the fish were found to be as high as 19 parts per million. The trouble is that the FDA has not so far set a tolerance level for fish.

The tolerance level for beef, for instance, is 7 p.p.m., but fatty fish, such as salmon and trout, absorb more DDT than do some other fish swimming the same waters. There has been considerable mortality in Michigan coho hatcheries from DDT.

Obviously it is time to make a decision to ban the use of pesticides that contain DDT. District Fish Manager Lee Kernan has said that if such a prohibition would occur immediately it would still take 10 to 15 years for Lake Michigan to cleanse itself. There seems little sense to continue trout and coho planting in Lake Michigan streams if there is the strong possibility of continued and increased contamination from DDT.

The pesticide is also threatening several species of birds which feed upon fish and small animals. The peregrine falcon is close to extinction while the bald eagle and the osprey are also seriously threatened. The FDA action is also proof that man is not immune. And while many fishermen fish for the sport, the waste of not being able to consume the catch is lamentable.

We cannot agree with the statements of representatives of some farm organizations that the dangers are being overestimated. Other pesticides can and must be found and used so that any containing DDT can be permanently prohibited.

First Battle Within Administration Is on Defense Budget; Laird Wins

By JOSEPH KRAFT

WASHINGTON — The first major in-house battle of the Nixon administration has been fought on the issue of the defense budget.

The winner on points is Defense Secretary Melvin Laird. The losers are President Nixon, Henry Kissinger, his chief aide for national security, and most of the anti-inflation warriors, including the Director of the Bureau of the Budget.

The battle of the defense budget finds its origins in the struggle to hold down inflation. By the time the Nixon administration took office, it was plain that price rises were not being arrested by the combination of increased taxes and tight monetary policy. It would be necessary to cut back the budget submitted by President Johnson for fiscal 1970.

To that end Budget Director Robert Mayo, on Jan. 25, asked all department and agency heads to go over money requests in the Johnson budget with an eye to making a "sizeable reduction." It was generally assumed that most of the saving would have to come out of the Defense Department budget, which takes up nearly half of the total.

QUOTES $2.5 BILLION

That assumption seemed to be confirmed at the President's news conference of March 14. Mr. Nixon said: "Incidentally, my understanding at this time, and I have seen the preliminary figures, is that the defense budget that Secretary Laird will present will be approximately $2.5 billion less than that submitted by the Johnson administration."

On March 19, Secretary Laird presented his budget in testimony to the Congress. The cuts amounted to $500 million — not the $2.5 billion intimated by the President.

As it developed, the $2.5 billion was an error made by the White House staff through adding up various cuts Laird was planning to make without also taking account of various additions he was tacking onto the Johnson budget. Still, the figure used by the President had to be roughly in the neighborhood of his expectations.

The fact is that at the very time he announced the $500 million cut Laird was under continuing pressure for further cuts. In his testimony announcing the $500 million cut, he inserted the statement that "these figures are subject to modification by the Bureau of the Budget and the President."

That statement, by putting the monkey on the President's back, was at least a technical violation of the good form that requires Cabinet officers to spare the White House. Still an opening had been made for the Budget Bureau, and the bureau moved in.

Director Mayo made it plain that he expected larger cuts than the $500 million. He sent over to the Pentagon a "laundry list" of possible reductions in spending.

The list included a wide range of different weapons systems running from the most glamorous equipment to nearly obsolete stuff where junking might make possible savings on maintenance charges. It said nothing about any cutback of operations in Vietnam. The view of the President and of Dr. Kissinger was that Vietnam operations should be determined by foreign policy, not budgetary considerations.

CUT B-52 SORTIES

Against that background, Mr. Laird announced Tuesday additional cuts of $600 million in the defense budget, to be achieved by reducing the number of B-52 sorties flown in Vietnam from 1,800 a month to 1,600 a month. That decision was a slap at several faces.

For one thing, it seemed to disavow the doctrine, dear to the President and Dr. Kissinger, whereby Vietnam operations were not primarily a matter of budgetary considerations. Even more, Laird's decision was a blow to the anti-inflationary forces centering around Director Mayo. For Congressional pressure against reducing the B-52 sorties is bound to develop. Indeed, Congressman Sam Stratton, an upstate New York Democrat on the Armed Services Committee, has already objected that "this is not the time to scribble on the lives and safety of more than 500,000 American troops in Vietnam."

Right there, probably, lies the explanation of what Mr. Laird is up to. The Defense Secretary is under tremendous pressure to cut his budget, not merely from the Administration but far more from the liberal Democrats ganging up around the issue of the antiballistic missile. As a man very sensitive to the views of the military in the Pentagon, Laird is reluctant to cut. By such devices as the reduction of B-52 sorties, he is deliberately building up the righteous wrath of the Neanderthals on the Armed Services Committee as a barrier against pressure from the Democratic liberals.

That he can pursue such tactics in evident disregard of other considerations and personalities important to the Administration, however, raises some sharp questions. In particular, it is not clear that the Administration, for all its meticulous preparation and painstaking care, is really on top of inflationary pressures and the unbridled monster that the Pentagon could become.

Conduct Code Should Be Enacted Into Law

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

May you find this subject worthy of presenting to your readers in the editorial section of your newspaper?

What is the Navy court of inquiry at Coronado Island, Calif., trying to learn from questioning the officers and crew of the U.S.S. Pueblo? The court is investigating the circumstances surrounding the capture of the ship, and the conduct of the crew while they were in the North Koreans' P.O.W. camp.

The capture of the ship is strictly a high level military matter. The issue of the conduct of the crew is my concern as a U. S. Marine and fellow citizen. And it is your concern as a taxpayer to see that your Armed Forces are doing the job you are paying us to do: Safeguarding the United States.

As the court is trying to decide if the conduct of the Pueblo crew was worthy of a U. S. fighting man, there is no such directive which gives a serviceman an order on how to conduct himself while he is a P.O.W.

What about the "Code of Conduct"? After the Korean war a committee was appointed to hold an inquiry on the conduct of U. S. P.O.W.'s who were captured by the North Koreans. As a result of the inquiry, the "U. S. Fighting Man's Code of Conduct" was born. The Code was so designed to offer the Armed Forces a guideline of how to act in the event of capture by enemy forces.

Did the officers and crew of the Pueblo conduct themselves in a manner outlined in the Code? The conduct of the crew of the Pueblo has already been investigated, by a committee, 14 years ago!!! The court at Coronado could be making an effort now, to make the Code a directive, an order. The Law.

The Code of Conduct is a simple, good code I believe the Armed Forces should be held responsible to uphold. The Code does nothing more than give the fighting man sound, effective guidelines on how to act like an American in the face of the enemy.

As a U. S. Marine, I do not intend giving myself up while I still have the means to resist. I do not intend giving the enemy military information which may be harmful to the cause of what the U. S. is

Approval of County Executive Referendum Was Historic Event

By JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — The ratification by the people of Wisconsin of an amendment to the state constitution to permit the election of county executives with true executive power will rank as one of the most important of the local government reforms since the establishment of the county system under drastically different circumstances more than 120 years ago.

It is a manifestation of the recognition for modernization of the archaic county government structure that was first shown in the reapportionment of the county boards as legislative agencies, in compliance with the one man one vote concept which is the foundation of the democratic idea.

But there is an important difference. The reapportionment of the county boards was under duress to the extent that mean that the job has been finished. Complementary legislation will be required, and there may be some dispute about how it should be written.

SOME DON'T NEED

Perhaps all counties do not need a full-time county executive. Surely such tiny entities as Menominee or Forest or Buffalo or Pepin do not.

The idea is more obviously related to the needs of the urbanizing counties, perhaps a dozen or 15 or more, where administration by committee is becoming more and more tedious, inefficient and cumbersome, as the increase in the number of functions and responsibilities of the counties continues with more area-wide services in an era of urban sprawl.

As a guess, the legislature will probably classify counties according to their population and character in the application of the county executive principle, as it classified them in the county board reapportionment act.

A discussion of the performance of the electorate last week would not be complete without a comment on the repudiation of the idea that the vocational and technical schools should be transferred from local to state control and financing.

That referendum somehow slipped through the legislature in an unguarded moment, and there was real fear that the irate reaction of many citizens to the payment of vocational school taxes for the first time under the recent vocational school districting act would bring a majority of affirmative votes.

But it was defeated decisively. An additional two mills of property taxation in localities that were not liable for the vocational school tax in earlier times may be distasteful. But the voters showed the idea of abolition of local rule and abdication of the management of their schools to a distant Madison bureaucracy is even more distasteful.

In point of fact, the result would have been academic even if the vote had been reversed for the state is obviously in no position to spend the multimillion dollar sums of new tax dollars that a state-operated system would require.

Male Arrogance Harms Their Health

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Silly the things people are proud of. Recently, I had a medical examination for some extra life insurance, and in discussing my health record, I told the doctor I have worked 28 years at the same place without ever missing a day's work.

This is the kind of pride that goeth before a fall, and I know it. I have heard many men boast that they haven't had a vacation in seven years, and on the eighth they crumple up with a heart attack. The past is not too predictive of the future, but it is easy to get smug about such matters.

A person is like a tree, in that a tree that won't bend is more likely to break than one that sways with the heavy winds. People who indulge themselves a little, who coddle themselves a bit when feeling fragile, probably live a lot longer than the Spartan types who grimly plough down to the office no matter how wretched they happen to feel.

Of course, there are sickly people and healthy ones; yet it is surprising how many of the sickly ones outlive the others.

fighting for. I do not intend losing faith in my government and my God. I expect my fellow servicemen to have the same "code," and the United States should expect its Armed Forces to uphold the "Code of Conduct" to the best of our ability. The "Code of Conduct" should be changed from worthless guidelines to an effective directive for myself and my fellow servicemen to follow.

I am right now in South Vietnam just miles from the D.M.Z. If I were captured tomorrow by North Vietnam, I wouldn't expect me to conduct myself as a loyal American! To be sure of my conduct, write to your congressmen and urge the Code of Conduct to become something I am held responsible to uphold to the best of my ability.

Perhaps because they pay more attention to warning signs, and have not learned to give in to Nature's subtle nudges, or at least to cooperate with the ebb and flow of physical resistance.

It is no accident, I think,

that women generally live longer than men, by a span of several years; or that we have an excess of some eight million widows over widowers in this country.

Women tend to be sick more often than men, and suffer more from chronic ailments. But, because they are so exquisitely aware of changes in their bodies, so intimately connected to the homeostatic balances that their being, they are continually adjusting the tempi and patterns of their activities to the realities of their daily needs.

Men, on the other hand, are only grossly aware of their bodies. A man will even take a perverse masculine pride in abusing his energies, as though it were proof of virility of some sort. It is considered a shameful show of weakness to pay attention to warning signs before they tell him with a mighty blow.

It is this male arrogance, I am convinced, rather than any inherent biological weakness, that drops men out of the race years before their wives or widows fade from the scene. And it may be an emotional luxury our society can no longer afford — as medical science increases our longevity, those millions of widows merely have more years of aimless solitude to look forward to, missing those husbands who never missed a day's work.

Chippewa First Major River to Hit Flood Stage

Are Expected in City of Eau Claire

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flooding arrived officially today in northwestern Wisconsin, but accompanied by victory applause rather than by the anguish which had been anticipated for weeks.

The Chippewa River was the first of the state's major Mississippi tributaries to climb to flood stage, filled with runoff from a heavy north-country layer of snow which the Weather Bureau had warned March 3, could produce the region's worst general inundation in history.

A lack of rain, however, and gradual melting deprived the snow cover of much of its threat. Forecasts issued Monday for the northwest indicated river communities have far less to fear than they did last month.

Eau Claire's city engineer, Vern Miller, said he was told by the Weather Bureau the Chippewa would be holding at flood stage by afternoon in his community. He said the city expected few problems.

Dike Completed

Nevertheless, finishing touches were put on a 2,600-foot dike late Monday. The structure is one of several built in the area to battle what had been expected to be higher water.

The forecast for Eau Claire a month ago had been for a flood crest 6½ feet above flood stage, comparable to the 1967 levels that put more than 15 city blocks and part of the Eau Claire State University campus under water.

Downstream, the Chippewa was expected to crest by Wednesday about two feet above flood stage at Durand. Upstream at Chippewa Falls, it was expected to have no major impact other than to fill man-made Lake Wissota to its brim.

Conditions weren't reported to be appreciably more serious elsewhere in the northwest, except for low-lying areas that often encounter water problems in the spring.

The Trempealeau River was expected to crest at Dodge about a foot over flood stage Thursday, and the Black River was expected to be a foot above flood level at Neillsville by Wednesday.

Doubts inspired by years of sad experience, however, were being expressed in southwestern Wisconsin about the Mississippi itself.

Evacuations

The Minnesota River and its tributaries have been forcing evacuations in southern Minnesota, and its high water is on the way to the Mississippi.

La Crosse officials appealed Monday for more volunteers to help finish work on nearly seven miles of levees.

The city hadn't yet been given a prediction by the Weather Bureau as to when to expect a flood crest, or how deep it might be.

The city's latest word was that the Mississippi would rise to within a foot of its 12-foot flood stage by Thursday.

At Prairie du Chien, where flood stage is 13 feet, the Mississippi was expected to reach 13.2 feet by Thursday.

Cities along the Wisconsin River have been making anti-flood preparations similar to those of their more westerly neighbors since March.

Heart Donor 'Medically Dead' 48 Hours

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The ambulance flight from Massachusetts to a man who survived for 65 hours on a mechanical heart that indications were that Karp's body was unlikely to recover from the transplant, says Dr. Denton A. Cooley.

Haskell Karp, 47, who received the donor heart here Monday, was listed in satisfactory condition in St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital. Cooley, the 48-year-old surgeon who performed both operations on Karp, said Monday night in Detroit that the donor, Mrs. Barbara Ewan, 40, was medically dead 48 hours prior to the operation.

Ambulance Flight "She had complete brain damage and had no reflexes whatever," Cooley said. "She had been supported by extraordinary means."

Cooley said Mrs. Ewan suffered cardiac arrest eight blocks from St. Luke's and she required heart massage to keep the organ functioning until the operation.

Mrs. Ewan of Lawrence, Mass., was flown here on jet plane from Boston to Houston. The experimental device was inserted during an operation last Friday when it developed that Karp's own heart was irreparably damaged.

A public appeal for a human donor was made by the patient's wife, Shirley. Cooley said he followed that up with personal calls to 25 or 30 surgeons in various parts of the nation.

Mrs. Ewan's three daughters, Mrs. Carol Burns, 22, one of Mrs. Ewan's three daughters, said the family's decision to donate the heart was a response to Mrs. Ewan's plea. Mrs. Ewan's husband died of a heart attack several years ago. Doctors said Mrs. Ewan was alive while awaiting a human donor.

With the mechanical heart we can buy time until a transplant donor can be obtained," he said. "This offers us the backup we have wanted for such a long time," Cooley added. "We've put up one sputnik you might say. If we could develop a power pack that could also be inserted we could expect it to sustain life much longer."

On the return trip with Mrs. Ewan, mechanical problems arose and an emergency landing without brakes was made at Barksdale Air Force Base near Shreveport, La.

Another plane had to be rushed to the airfield to complete the ambulance run. Mrs. Ewan became critically ill about 10 minutes before arriving at the hospital. She died shortly before the transplant began at 8 a.m. EST.

A single electrical shock jarred her heart into action in Karp's body after the power supply to the mechanical heart was shut off at 9 a.m.

Argentina-born Dr. Domingo Liotta, who developed the mechanical device, said preliminary observations indicated it had worked extremely well. "I would say better than we expected,"

Cooley said Karp was reluctant at first to become a heart transplant patient. "But he realized he was at the end of his string," Cooley said. "He was a drowning man."

Live, Color TV Due for Apollo?

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Space officials say there is better than a 50-50 chance that the descent of two Apollo 10 astronauts toward the moon next month will be seen on home television in live color.

It all depends on whether the first color TV camera designed for a manned spaceship will be ready in time for Apollo 10's scheduled May 18 liftoff.

With two black-and-white TV cameras also aboard, Apollo 10 is expected to be the most televised flight yet.

Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford, Apollo 10 commander, said, "I am pushing hard" to get the color TV camera aboard.

"If we do, you'll see lots of pictures, including some of the lunar module (LEM) undocking and starting the descent," he said.

No Landing Plans

Plans call for the LEM to approach within five miles of the lunar surface. A landing will not be attempted.

The camera—to be carried inside Apollo 10's three-man command ship—could also be used to show color pictures of earth from the vicinity of the moon and from various distances between earth and moon.

Stafford and Navy Cmdr Eugene A. Cernan are to uncouple the LEM from the command ship in moon orbit, then pilot the sidery craft on its descent.

Inside the command ship, Navy Cmdr. John W. Young could aim the color camera to show the departing LEM with the moon in the background about 70 miles below.

Equipped with a zoom lens, having a variable focal length, the camera could show the LEM at considerable distances from the command ship and give close-up views of the lunar surface, officials said.

Color Prospects Great

"The color should be great—as good if not better than any standard color television seen," said Stanley Lebar, program manager for the Westinghouse Electric Corp., builder of the color camera.

Weighing 10 pounds and about 12 inches long, the camera is similar to ones carried aboard previous spacecraft which relayed black-and-white pictures to earth.

Westinghouse modified the system, however, to include a filter wheel that divides the image into various colors which can then be reconstituted at ground receiving stations.

9 Killed in Explosion at Swiss Factory

AARAU, Switzerland (AP) — An explosives factory blew up today at the village of Dottikon, killing nine persons and injuring 40 others, police reported.

Alarm sirens and church bells began ringing in villages and towns for miles around as the explosion sent a shock wave through the countryside and raised a gigantic mushroom cloud over the village.

Within minutes hundreds of ambulances, fire engines and patrol cars from the entire canton of Aarau raced to Dottikon, an industrial village of some 2,000 inhabitants.

The blast was felt 12 miles away in Aarau, and for five miles around it shattered nearly all window panes.

Police headquarters said the explosion blew off roofs and cracked and damaged the walls of several dozen houses in Dottikon. A small forest next to the factory caught fire, but contrary to early reports the only buildings that collapsed were some of those of the explosives company.

Nitrate Plant

The explosion occurred in a nitrate plant at 7:15 a.m. shortly after the factory's 400 employees had come to work. But police said elaborate safety arrangements prevented the explosion from setting off stocks of combustibles.

It was the third major accidental explosion in Switzerland this year. One destroyed a firecracker factory near Lausanne in January, killing a pedestrian who was walking past. Four workers were seriously injured in an explosion that destroyed a house under construction at Hergiswil in February.

One-Man Campaign Has Target Of Recalling Ailing State Senator

MADISON (AP) — A Horicon man says he got "the run-around" in the state Capitol, or there might have been another election in Wisconsin April 1.

Francis Bellon, 51, a retired Air Force lieutenant colonel, has been conducting a one-man campaign since January to get what he calls assurances of representation in the state Senate for the 13th District.

The district's elected senator, veteran Republican leader Frank Panzer, 78, the Senate's president emeritus, has been ill and unable to attend any sessions since late 1967.

Under state law, an office cannot be declared vacant because of extended absence. Only death, resignation or recall could give Gov. Warren P. Knowles authority to call a special election to name a successor.

In deference to Panzer's past services, senators, including Republican majority leader Ernest Keppler of Sheboygan, are reluctant to discuss the matter.

"It's a delicate issue," Keppler said. "Panzer has devoted his entire life to public service." Bellon, saying he has nothing against Robert Zimmerman in January about the matter, and that Zimmerman passed the letter on to Republican Lt. Gov. Jack Olson, president of the Senate.

Panzer

Olson wrote Bellon later in January that state law provides for removing a senator by resignation, death or recall petition.

Bellon said that when he asked for a sample of a recall petition, Olson referred him to Leo Fahey, state election supervisor

"I stopped pushing because I didn't want to harass people and become a big villain," he said.

Bellon said he planned to circulate a recall petition in order to have the office declared vacant.

"Then the election could have been on the April ballot so there would be no need for a special election and special expense," he said.

"I have nothing against Frank, although I know him only remotely," Bellon added, "but the 150,000 persons in Washington, Jefferson and the eastern half of Dodge counties need representation."
